AMERICA IS EXPECTED TO ENTER COURT

Membership in World Tribunal Seems Assured After Exchange of Notes

CLEAR UP VAGUE POINTS

Reservations by Senate Accepted Abroad but Explanations Needed

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1928, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—America's entry into the world court appears now to be assured.

The course of procedure determined upon by the United States government is such that when an exchange of notes has been accomplished the way will be open for the other nations of the world to accept the reservations made by the United States senate.

Contrary to general impression, the American senate is not barring the way to the world court. The reservations adopted by the senate were almost all acceptable to the other countries but there were one or two ambiguous phrases on which other governments have sought information. The American government now is ready to furnish the necessary explanation and no action by the senate is necessary.

Does the United States, for instance, insist that advisory opinions shall not be rendered by the world court with out the consent of the United States or merely that this should be required only when America is involved in the dispute? The answer is that America does not wish to block the machinery of the world court by exercising a veto on all its operations but merely wishes to avoid embarrassment by having public submitted or discussed, which are directly related to purely American questions.

How, also, should consent be given? The answer again is that an exchange of notes can express the necessary assent.

FACTS ADD STRENGTH

Ever since the Kellogg anti-war treaties were negotiated the strength of note exchanges has been impressed on the various governments. Indeed, the correspondence which led up to the signing of the anti-war pacts themselves

Albanian Monarch Writes That Reasons of State Force Action

Tirana, Albania.—(AP)—King Zogu is understood to have broken his troth to the daughter of a wealthy landowner and decided that he must have a princess of royal blood to share his throne.

Zogu, who was proclaimed king on Sept. 1, had been engaged for six years to Lela, the 23-year-old daughter of Shevket Bey Viltaz, a wealthy landowner of Elbasan. He is now understood to have written her saying that he deeply loves her but that reasons of state have compelled him reluctantly and sorrowfully to give up the idea of their marriage.

Lela is reported to be nearly heart-broken and unreconciled to her fate. She is quoted as having said that she can never love any man except the king, handsome 34-year-old king.

The reported breaking of Zogu's troth has again stirred up discussions as to whom he will choose to share his throne. Muslim subjects of Zogu refuse to believe that there is any possibility of Princess Giovanna of Italy becoming their queen since she probably would not be willing to abandon the Christian faith nor Zogu his devout adherence to Mohammedanism.

When Zogu first announced his plans for turning the republic of Albania into a kingdom there was a rumor that he intended to marry a daughter of King of Egypt. This possibility is now being discussed again.

16 Green Bay Men Fined, 15 Given Jail Sentences

Green Bay.—(AP)—Fines totaling $3,175 and a total of 75 months in the house of correction was the punishment meted out Tuesday to 16 Green Bay violators of the Volstead act, caught in the wholesale raids made by the federal government several weeks ago.

Continuing his disposition of the cases growing out of the raids, Judge P. A. Geiger accepted the pleas of guilty from the 16 saloon proprietors and bar tenders, and imposed sentences. In all but one case, he gave the proprietors six months in the house of correction and fined them $250.

Twenty-eight others entered pleas of not guilty to charges of violating the Volstead law, and will have jury trials at a term of court to open here Dec. 6. Another group of 39 defendants was to be arraigned Tuesday afternoon.

Monday the judge ordered federal padlocks snapped on 33 places charge with dispensing liquor. Padlocks had been ordered previously on 10 other saloons when the owners failed to file answers to padlock petitions within the time limit.

Twelve proprietors of saloons were sentenced to six months and fined $250 each, while one man, Joseph Neidle was given only three months. Lucy Kuska, wife of one of the proprietors and the only woman arraigned Tuesday was fined $100. Two other bartenders were fined.

Saloon proprietors sentenced to six months and fined $250 were August E. Andres, Ignatz Blazi, Earl Bunker, Joseph Detry, Patrick Dixon, Joe Feldhausen, John Milheller, George Kuska, Joseph Mathys, John Novak, Louis Nejedle, and Frank Polozinski.

William O'Brien, bartender for Fedibusson, was fined $100, and John Kennedy, bartender for Novak was let off with a fine of $25.

The old exception of the six-month sentence rule in court Tuesday was granted in the case of Joseph Neidle, whose frankness resulted in his being given a sentence of three months and the remission of his fine.

When his name was called, Neidle stood up and said, "Sure, I'm guilty. We're all guilty. I'm not going to come here and lie about it." Judge Geiger commended him and then imposed the reduced sentence.

The defendants to be arraigned Tuesday afternoon are from outside of Green Bay and their cases have no connection with the "clean-up" here. At the jury term of the district court, in addition to the cases laid over from Tuesday, liquor cases from Shawano, Outagamie and Winnebago counties will be heard.

One case was thrown out when District Attorney Baneroff informed that the defendant, Henry Huss, apparently had no connection with the sale of liquor.

BOARD DISCUSSES FINANCE PROBLEMS

Zimmerman Turns Meeting Over to Dammann and Governor-Elect Kohler

Madison.—(AP)—Juggling million dollar figures of state finance problems, the state board of public affairs met and planned Tuesday afternoon to hear explanations of the requests for funds from the state board of normal regents, the state board of control of charitable and penal institutions and the state university.

Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman opened the meeting, then explained that as he will not be governor when the legislature meets to take up the board's recommendations for state financing he wished to be considered out of the affair, and turned the meeting over to Theodore Dammann, president of state, and Governor-Elect Walter J. Kohler.

The present governor explained that the impression might go out, if he continued to take part in the meeting, that he was seeking to boost appropriations to embarrass the incoming administration or a cut in them to embarrass state officers. He asked C. G. Blough, secretary of the board, to give an account of what happened on the appropriations last year, then excused himself.

Members of the board remaining were Mrs. John Martin, Green Bay; Harry Adams, Beloit, appointing members; Henry Ellenbecker, Wausau, chairman of the assembly finance committee, Senator W. L. Smith, Neilsville, chairman of the senate finance committee and president pro tem of the senate and Messrs. Dammann, Blough and Kohler.

City Treasurer Draws Order on Local Bank for $103,913.47

An order for $103,913.47 was drawn on a local bank Tuesday by Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, in favor of Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, for taxes withheld from the county in 1928. In view of the suit the city started against the county alleging that part of the county tax had been illegally levied.

Zuehlke informing the treasurer that the injunction restraining him from turning over the cash to the county had been dissolved.

The exact sum withheld by the city was $109,453. The rest represents interest the city received at the rate of 2 per cent, increasing the sum $3,450.47. The interest was computed from March 22, 1927, to Nov. 27, 1928.

"JOKE" SHOOTING MAY RESULT IN FATALITY

Sheboygan.—(AP)—The condition of Charles Manthey, 38, in a hospital here with a bullet lodged at the base of his brain, the result of a bar-keeper's joke, remained unchanged Tuesday. It still is critical.

Because of the location of the bullet, doctors have postponed for several days their operation to remove it. August Henning, the barkeeper, has been released on his own recognizance pending the outcome of the operation. He jokingly pointed a gun which he thought was a toy, at Manthey.

Arizona Governor And Senator In Fist Fight

Phoenix, Ariz.—(AP)—A fisty encounter between G. W. P. Hunt, governor of Arizona and State Senator Fred Colter during an argument in the state capitol over the Colorado river question, gave an exciting touch Monday to a problem which has harassed the state for years.

Arizona's intense feeling over the ultimate settlement of the Colorado river problem was the subject of an argument which precipitated the clash. The state legislature has been called into special session primarily to consider action to be taken upon the Swings-Johnson bill now before congress.

Arizona's Colorado river commission, appointed to investigate and handle the river problem in conjunction with the commissions of the six other states concerned, was being

Nicaraguan Chiefs Greet Herb On Good Will Trip

Corinto, Nicaragua.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, on his good will tour of Latin-American countries, landed here at 10:55 Tuesday morning. He was officially welcomed by President Diaz former President Chamorro and President-Elect Moncada.

Several members of the cabinet were also in the welcoming party and a big crowd gave him a splendid popular welcome.

After greetings had been exchanged, Mr. Hoover entertained President Diaz and the other Nicaraguan celebrities at a luncheon aboard the U. S. S. Maryland.

The town of Corinto was gaily decorated with flags, bunting and welcome signs in honor of the visit. President Diaz, Brigadier-General Frank R. McCoy, American minister Charles C. Eberhardt, Brigadier-General Logan Feland and Lieutenant Colonel E. R. Beadle arrived in Corinto by special train from Managua Monday.

They took up residence at the home of Robert J. Jordan, of Minneapolis, collector of customs, who has turned over his house as the reception headquarters at which President Diaz planned to welcome Mr. Hoover.

President-Elect Moncada of Nicaragua, arrived into Corinto on Sunday and exchanged official calls with Rear Admiral David F. Sellers who has, since here several days arranging the program.

A feature of the train trip of the presidential party were the loud cheers for former President Chamorro who accompanied the party, sympathizers greeting him enroute. There was also applause for General McCoy, who supervised the recent presidential election.

Mr. Hoover in his first speeches on his present trip told the people of Honduras and of San Salvador that he was paying them a call of friendship in behalf of the people of the United States. Both addresses, one at Amapala, the other at La Union, were brief and both emphasized the need for mutual understanding between the United States and other democracies of the American continent.

At both seaports Monday he was given a warm and colorful welcome. The military were present in gorgeous uniforms. There were salutes and return salutes, the hoisting of flags and bands playing "The Star Spangled Banner." The president elect spoke first at Amapala.

"In our daily life good neighbors call upon each other as the evidence of solicitude for the common welfare," he said, "and to learn of the circumstances and point of view of each so that there may come both understanding and respect which are the elementary forces of all enduring society."

He told his audience that the United States and Honduras were pledged States and Honduras were forefathers to national independence.

Man Wanted in Rothstein Murder Surrenders—Woman Brought into Case

New York.—(AP)—George McManus, whose overcoat was found in the hotel room in which Arnold Rothstein was fatally wounded, surrendered Tuesday after police had sought him for three weeks in vain and was to be arraigned Tuesday afternoon, on a short affidavit charging him with murder in the first degree.

Three shadowy figures—one of them a woman—loomed Tuesday in the grand jury investigation of the case.

Their identity is hidden under legal phraseology as "Jane Doe, John Doe and Richard Doe."

The first intimation that a woman was suspected of having had a hand in the slaying was contained in a document filed late Monday when the state asked the detention as material witnesses of five friends of the slain gambler.

"Yes, there is a woman in the case and she is very important," said District Attorney Banton in explanation of "Jane Doe."

"I can't discuss her now. I am not certain that we have enough evidence at this time to obtain an indictment against her."

BARABOO MAN HELD AS DRIVER OF DEATH CAR

Baraboo.—(AP)—Charles W. Boyles, Baraboo, was under arrest Tuesday as the driver of a car which crashed into a group of persons on highway 12 Saturday night, killing a man whom the group was picking up to turn in a car after he had been run down by another automobile. Boyles is being held in county jail here on a charge of failing to stop after striking a person on the highway.

Mississippi Barge Lines Not "Benefaction"—Reed

St. Louis.—(AP)—Speaking in his characteristically militant manner, United States Senator James A. Reed Monday night urged the Mississippi Valley association to go before congress, not as "suppliants" asking a benefaction" but as business men asking for money for a great public investment.

Senator Reed attacked railroad interests which he said were blocking the development of the barge lines in the middle west. He turned a satirical eye on waterway advocates who proposed asking congress for $10,000,000 when he said $100,000,000 would be a more adequate amount with which to equip the barge lines.

The army engineers, under whom the creation of channels and administration of the barge lines is carried on, came under his criticism on the ground that they were "shrunk in intellectually" by restrictions and army traditions. They were not entirely to blame, however, he said, but were hampered by lack of funds to buy operating equipment.

"We can't about $10,000,000 to build barges for the 70 waterway projects in the Mississippi valley, when we spend $50,000,000 to build a battleship."

"There was no caviling over dollars when we made the Italian debt settlement at 21 cents on the dollar, so that Despot Mussolini might proceed with building his army and navy. In our settlement with Great Britain we threw off $125,000,000 of interest. That $125,000,000 would have built a lot of barges. The British diplomats went around our diplomats like coopers around a barrel, nailed in the heads and stopped the bunnies before our statesmen knew they were inside."

Turning to the railroads, he said "any railroad president in the mid-west who tries to throttle waterway transportation is so short-sighted, he should be deposed and his section boss ought to be put in his place."

LEVY RAISES $42,897 MORE THAN YEAR AGO

More Than $1,500,000 Needed for City, School and County Purposes

BAND IS GIVEN $6,500

Council Votes to Spend $70,000 for Sewer Improvement Next Year

Property holders in Appleton will pay a tax rate of 3 1/2 per cent, equivalent to $35 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation of their property, to raise the 1929 tax budget, the common council decided at an adjourned meeting Monday evening. This is the same rate as last year.

Calculated on the city's assessed valuation of $32,048,950, tax payments will pour $1,121,713.25 into Appleton's treasury, or $12,897.05 more than last year. Less money was realized from taxes last time because Appleton then was assessed at $30,839,000.

Out of every $35 to be collected by the city treasurer, $24 will go toward the county state tax, $12.70 will be used for general city purposes, and $12.90 will be expended for school purposes. Thus is the total rate made up.

Viewing these same figures on the basis of the entire amount expected to be raised, the county state tax will approximate $301,260.13, the general city tax will total $407,021.66, and the tax for the high school and other school purposes will add up to $413,431.46.

The tax budget, will not be sufficient to cover the extended cost of city government for the ensuing year. The 3 1/2 per cent tax rate, already pointed out, should raise $1,121,713.25, but it is conservatively estimated that $1,589,745.55 will be needed to see Appleton safely through 1929.

The difference, $468,032.30, will be entirely met, however, with the exception of approximately $53,000, and it is hoped that a large part of this sum will be realized through savings in various executive departments.

Receipts next year from the city's share of income taxes, taxes due from public utilities, and estimated income from several miscellaneous sources, will make up about $250,000 of the deficit. In addition, approximately $50,000 is due the city next month for utility taxes, and $85,000 more will be collected during tax time to repay the city for loans extended property holders for sidewalk construction, graving work in streets, etc.

The tax rate for school purposes is considerably less this time, $1.20 for every $1,000. Consequently, despite the increased valuation of the city, $21,153.73 less will be raised for support of the schools.

With a rate of $1.30 per $1,000 higher for general purposes, $54,456.44 more will be collected for this part of the budget than last time. There is little variation in the county state tax rate. Last year it was only 10 cents per $1,000 higher. Thus it follows that only $9,631 more will be raised this time for this item.

The county state tax total is made up as follows: for state tax, $21,171.69; for county tax, $280,638.07; for county school tax, $250,557.55. This totals $542,367.31, approximately $700 more is indicated in the tax budget, but the difference practically is made up in the tax to be raised for school purposes in the city, where almost $400 more than the necessary amount will be realized.

The slight discrepancy was due to a minor change in the tax rates to make them even numbers and simplify somewhat the task of calculating the tax list. When the rates

RECEIPTS NEXT YEAR FROM THE CITY'S SHARE OF INCOME TAXES, TAXES DUE FROM PUBLIC UTILITIES, AND ESTIMATED INCOME FROM SEVERAL MISCELLANEOUS SOURCES, WILL MAKE UP ABOUT $250,000 OF THE DEFICIT.

In addition, approximately $50,000 is due the city next month for utility taxes, and $85,000 more will be collected during tax time to repay the city for loans extended property holders for sidewalk construction, graving work in streets, etc.

THE TAX RATE FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES IS CONSIDERABLY LESS THIS TIME, $1.20 FOR EVERY $1,000.

Floods Follow Storm In Europe--Report 100 Lives Lost

DIKES YIELD TO FORCE OF WIND AND SEA

Soldiers and Civilians Work Frantically to Repair Antwerp Sea Walls

Bucharest, Rumania.—(AP)—A terrific hurricane is raging on the Black Sea. Waves 45 feet high are breaking on the shores of Constantinople and many fishing and motor boats have been sunk. From the sea itself have come frequent S O S signals from larger vessels but because of the severity of the storm, the authorities have been unable to send help. Violent blizzards were reported from the Danubian valley.

London.—(AP)—Floods Tuesday followed in the wake of a four day gale which caused the loss of a score of vessels of substantial tonnage in western European waters and possibly took a toll of 100 lives. From Belgium north to the Prussian Island, lowlands were flooded as the sea was driven in upon them by raging winds. Dikes and sea walls buffeted by heavy seas gave way to the rush of waters.

Police, soldiers and civilians were working frantically in Antwerp to repair broken dikes there and on the opposite side of the Scheldt. The city water and gas pipes were undermined and gave way. The suburbs were flooded. Six persons were missing and it was feared that they were dead. A hole 60 yards in circumference and 6 yards deep was made in the Grand palace at Antwerp.

At Ostend, Belgium, the water from the seas ran down streets and inundated the ground floors of buildings.

SEA BREAKS THROUGH
The Flanders villages of Ghent, Bergen, Middelburg and Terneuzen were evacuated by their inhabitants as the sea rushed through a break 20 yards wide in the dikes.

At Bergen-op-zoom, Holland, a 130-foot dike broke with a tremendous crash, letting in the sea.

Rivers in the Vosges hills were rising with alarming rapidity. The Moselle was also rising and tributaries of the Rhine were raging torrents.

Cuxhaven Roads, Germany, was full of disabled shipping. One incoming vessel reported that it had sighted 5 wrecks in the North sea. The liner Carinthia arriving at Liverpool, England, reported that it had picked up 16 S O S calls all of which were subsequently cancelled.

15 ARE DROWNED
The French freighter Cesaree sunk off Algiers and 15 of her crew of 18 were drowned. An Italian steamer believed to be the Salento was wrecked and all aboard were lost. The Norwegian steamer Michelsen was driven ashore and there members of the crew drowned while the rest were being rescued. The British steamer Neath Abbey asked for help.

The steamships Montenegro and Saleron were wrecked near Vigo, Spain, and three lives were lost. As the gale moved over the Mediterranean all liners from Algiers, Oran and Tunis which were due at Marseilles, France, cruised outside the roads, being unable to make port.

The losses to Great Britain alone from the recent storms were estimated at more than a million pounds.

2,000 LETTERS IN SEAL SALE DRIVE

Campaign to Raise Money for Fight Against Plague Opens Wednesday

Over 2,000 letters, containing Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association Christmas seals will be sent out Wednesday by Mrs. Mabel Shannon, chairman of the Appleton-seal campaign. The design of the Christmas seal this year is a Roman ship or galley with a bright blue sky as a setting. The galley has flying on its mainmast a double-headed red cross, the emblem of the fight against tuberculosis. The slogan of the 1928 seal is, "Her cargo full of countless wealth of joy and hope and human health."

"This twenty-first campaign for funds to carry on the fight against tuberculosis comes at an important time in the war against a disease which is claiming more Wisconsin persons between the ages of 20 and 40 than any other disease, says Mrs. Shannon. "Our tuberculosis death rate has been cut almost in half since the fight was begun in 1908. In that year the tuberculosis death rate was 109.3 per 100,000 population. The death rate in 1927 was 64.4. The winning fight must go on."

Wisconsin Weather
Rain or snow tonight and Wednesday; warmer in southeast portion to night; somewhat colder Wednesday.

General Weather
The pressure is high over the southeastern states this morning, with rising temperature and increasing cloudiness. This western "low" is causing a few showers over the lower Missouri valley and should cause some rain or light snow here as it passes. The pressure is higher over the far northwest, which should advance and cause somewhat colder weather here again by Wednesday afternoon and night.

Mr. and Mrs. Matt Rossmessel, daughter Agnes, and Teddy and Peter Heid spent Sunday at the Rev. Paul Herb home at Stockbridge.

COUNCIL AGAIN FIXES $35 AS CITY TAX RATE

More Than $1,500,000 Required for City, School and County Purposes

were first determined, the county state tax rate was $9.43 and the general city rate was $12.67. These figures were changed to $9.40 and $12.70, respectively.

BUDGET IN RECORDS
The city school tax includes $365,000 for the public school system and $48,078.43 for the Vocational school.

Items increasing the estimated cost of operating Appleton next year consist of approximately $230,000 representing loans from local banks. Add to this the interest and other miscellaneous matters and it is readily seen how the city will probably spend more than $1,500,000 before 1929 gives way to 1930.

The city's budget, which henceforth will be made a matter of record by including it in the records of council proceedings, shows few startling deviations from the preceding one. The council, incidentally, adopted a motion introduced by Alderman Charles Thompson to include the budget in the records.

The most outstanding increase was made in the sewer improvement appropriation and amounts to $20,000 more. The sum to be set aside for attorney judgments and opening streets was increased from $5,000 to $10,000. The bridge improvement fund, for which no provision was made last time, was fixed at $7,000 this time. Other changes in budget appropriations are insignificant.

Following is the budget prepared by the aldermen and under which the city is expected to operate in 1929. In instances where no special reference is made, the appropriation has not been changed.

Mayor and aldermen, $15,000; treasurer, $4,000; clerk, $4,000; assessor and board of equalization, increased from $3,100 to $3,500; audit, $400; attorney judgments and opening streets, increased from $5,000 to $10,000; election, decreased from $5,000 to $2,500.

MORE FOR FIREMAN

Engineer, $7,000; plumbing inspector, $2,000; building inspector, $2,000; city hall, increased from $4,500 to $5,000; stock fair-grounds, increased from $1,500 to $2,000.

$70,000 FOR SEWERS

The sewer improvement appropriation was fixed at $70,000 to allow construction of the first part of the sanitary and storm water sewage so that the former will be disposed of in the Fox River at a point below the waterworks plant intake pipe.

The appropriation for celebrations, which consist principally of concerts by the 12th Field Artillery band, was unchanged. The Citizen's Finance committee of the band had asked for $8,000 this year.

The bridge improvement fund was raised to $7,000 to finance improvement of the S. Onelda-st bridge, pillars for which have been undergoing repairs recently.

An additional $4,500 was allowed for music in the schools, to permit an expansion of the musical program in the city. Besides the instrumental music, a plan covering vocal instruction will be carried out.

Collection of taxes probably will start the last week in December, it is said by Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer.

CONGRESS FACES QUIET SESSION, OBSERVERS THINK

Nothing Startling or Exciting Is Scheduled for Consideration

BY WALTER W. CHAMBLIN JR.
Washington—(P)—Unless an unexpected breeze should spring up congress gives promise this winter of sailing a tranquil course through the doldrums of legislative routine.

The outlook discloses nothing of an exciting or startling nature beyond the unsolved problems left from the last session, but then it is difficult to tell just what the 531 members who make up the house and senate will stir up before the seventieth congress passes into history at noon March 4.

Farm relief, the usual batch of annual appropriation bills, the Kellogg peace treaty, Boulder Canyon dam and the $27,000,000 naval building program are among the major tasks to be tackled at the short session starting December 2, although congressional leaders are undecided whether the farm problem should be taken up immediately or postponed for a special session in the early spring.

While these questions in the minds of many members hold foremost positions, a host of other subjects are rubbing shoulders with one another to obtain points of vantage. This latter group includes the Shipstead anti-injunction proposal, railroad consolidation, coal legislation and a group of senate investigating committee reports.

Of the whole array of questions none is a newcomer of Capitol Hill, and the inquisitive citizen can find volumes of testimony and reports on each of them in the various committee rooms of the two houses.

The Boulder Canyon dam bill, proposing government construction of a huge flood control-power-irrigation dam on the Colorado river, is the unfinished business in the senate. The measure, passed by the house late last session after stormy debate, precipitated a filibuster in the senate, and this session the two Arizona senators undoubtedly will make another determined fight against its enactment.

On farm relief Senator McNary of Oregon who heads the agricultural committee, has announced he will introduce a new bill minus the controversial equalization fee provisions. He has expressed that this long-standing problem can be solved without an extension, but no one knows what will be done on this score.

Along with the farm problem has been linked the question of tariff revision. President-elect Hoover and Vice-President-elect Curtis both have suggested tariff revision as one means of aiding the agricultural industry, and some members of congress feel a farm bill should be enacted prior to a consideration of tariff revision. It is argued that with a farm bill out of the way it would be easier to determine what tariff changes might be desired from the farm view point.

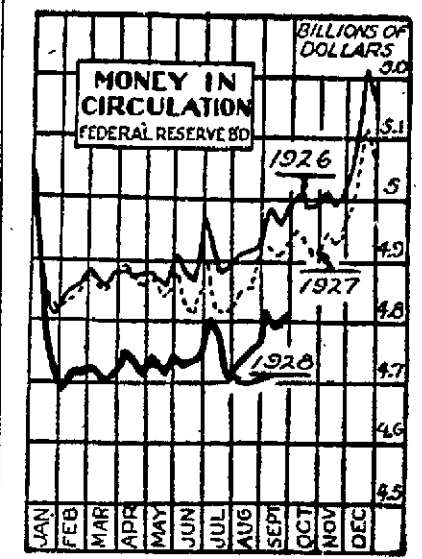

Pressure for consideration of the naval bill, which provide for the building of fifteen 10,000 ton cruisers and one aircraft carrier, is expected to be forthcoming from administration sources. The measure, which passed the house last winter, was presented to congress as having the full support of the navy department, and President Coolidge in an armistice day address advocated building up the navy.

The Kellogg treaty, which would have the American government renounce war as an instrument of national policy, probably will come before the senate at a comparatively early date. The purpose of the measure has been endorsed by Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, which group will have jurisdiction over the treaty.

While a bill proposing a plan for the voluntary consolidation of railroads was reported by the house commerce committee last session, it is problematical of the measure will negotiate the entire legislative pathway before March 4, when under constitutional mandate the seventieth congress takes its place in history.

As for the appropriation bills—the big task for every short session

CLAIM DECLINE IN MONEY USED NOW IS UNUSUAL

Washington—(P)—The amount of money in circulation has dropped about $200,000,000 in the past two years.

The federal reserve board, commenting on this development in its monthly bulletin, states that such a drop is an unusual occurrence, especially in years when industry and trade have been relatively active and that the reasons for it are not altogether clear.

It points out, however, that factory pay rolls declined from October 1927, to April 1928. Business and trade have undergone marked expansion in the latter months of this year, but the amount of money in circulation failed to respond to this upturn in the federal reserve figures through September.

The demand for currency is largely seasonal, rising sharply to a peak at the Christmas holidays and falling off to about the year's low point in January. Holidays generally cause sharp increases in demand. Next to Christmas, Independence day and Labor day are most important. The amount in circulation varies rather widely from day to day, normally declining each week until Wednesday, then rising about $45,000,000 to Saturday to meet the weekend requirements.

PUBLIC UTILITIES TAX IN DISTRICT $70,710

The tax apportionment of public utilities operating as street railways in this taxing district has been fixed at $76,710.33, according to a certification received Monday morning by Carl Becher, city clerk, from the Wisconsin Tax commission. The figure was computed on the average state rate.

The taxes must be paid by the utilities before Dec. 1, and the city will receive its share about Dec. 10, it is estimated by Fred Bachman, city treasurer. Sixty-five per cent of the total figure will be apportioned to the tax district on the basis of property located in the district and the business transacted in it, 20 per cent will be distributed to the counties on the same basis and the remaining 15 per cent will go to the state, according to the tax commission's letter.

"Y" NETBALLERS DRILL FOR GREEN BAY TILT

The Green Bay Y. M. C. A. volleyball team playing in the Fox River Valley Volleyball tournament will clash with the local Y men at the local association building at 7:30 Wednesday evening. The Bay men are among the leaders in the tournament while the locals occupy the cellar berth. A. P. Jensen, volleyball coach and physical director is drilling his men in spiking and volleying in preparation for the tilt.

of congress—a start already has been made by the house appropriations committee, which is charged with the responsibility of whipping them into shape. Since early summer have been laying the ground work so as to enable the members to get away to a running start.

COUNTIES MAY SUE LAND OWNERS FOR TAX NON-PAYMENTS

Old Law, Recently Uncovered, May Solve Delinquent Land Areas Problem

Madison—(P)—Comes now section seventy, point seventeen, of the laws of Wisconsin, long hidden in the maze of state laws and promises to solve the problem of greater tax-delinquent land areas in the northern part of the state.

For years the problem of tax delinquencies in the forest areas of the state has been acknowledged as the greatest in state and county finance question. The last legislature passed the forest crop tax law to help alleviate the situation. It provided that lands in certain parcels might be sworn to be agricultural lands if the owner would raise a forest crop on them, and that taxes would be levied at a lower rate for this "crop" land.

Now Hugh A. Minahan, deputy attorney general, looking up another matter on taxation, has discovered the section, hidden under a cation that belied its content, which provides that counties may sue lumber interests and others who refuse to pay taxes on lands that are no longer profitable.

Mr. Minahan said today that most of the lawyers and judges of the state have considered it impossible under the law for the counties to sue for land taxes.

It is estimated that there are 1,000,000 acres of land in the north from which the timber has been cut and which is now in the hands of the counties because no one has paid the taxes on it—land that is a dead loss to the counties in which it is located.

It has often been the practice of lumber firms to buy property, cut

COUNTY MAY ENROLL IN HOME TALENT CONTEST

Representatives of Parent-Teacher associations and Community organizations of the county are to meet Wednesday afternoon at the courthouse to make efforts to form a county organization to take part in the 1929 Adult Wisconsin State Home Talent tournament. The meeting has been called by A. G. Meeting, county superintendent of schools, and Dr. D. E. Lindstrom, a representative of the extension division of the state university, will give a talk explaining the tournament. The state university is sponsoring the contest. At least four local centers must enter the contest at a county wide meeting. A county winner enters a district tournament and the district winner takes part in the state contest at Madison next February.

FOREIGNERS WORK ON PAPER PROBLEMS

Men from Other Countries Employed in Laboratories at Madison

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C. — The ranks of the foreign scientists working on American wood-utilization problems in the Forest Products Laboratory of the U. S. department of agriculture at Madison, Wis., were augmented recently by the arrival of five men sent by government and private agencies in Australia, Finland, Poland, and Sweden, the department of agriculture announced.

H. E. Somerset, Melbourne, Australia, will work as a member of the pulp and paper staff of the Forest Products Laboratory for a period of one year before returning to Australia to take a position in a paper mill operating on eucalyptus.

C. Ellis, forest economist of the Queensland Forest Service, Brisbane, Australia, will make his headquarters at the laboratory for the next 12 or 18 months, studying its organization and methods, and using it as a point of departure for trips to various wood-using industries of the United States and Canada.

K. Kuoppamaki, mechanical engineer from Finland, has spent some time at the laboratory studying the manufacture of plywood.

Dr. J. Wiertelak, assistant in the Institute of Chemistry, University of Poznan, Poland, is beginning a year of study at the Forest Products Laboratory on a scholarship of the Polish Ministry of Education. Dr. Wiertelak's studies will be principally on the chemistry of wood.

Carl Gustaf Strokirk, Harnosand, Sweden, is at the laboratory on a grant from the University of Commerce, Stockholm. Mr. Strokirk will remain at the Madison laboratory until May studying the manufacture of plywood and other wood-utilization problems. During the summer of 1929 he will obtain employment in American woodworking plants to observe American methods. He will return to the laboratory next fall.

J. E. Cummins and H. E. Dads-well, Commonwealth (Austrian) Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, are nearing the end of a two-years' study at the Forest Products Laboratory.

Seven Senate Veterans Facing Last Session

Washington — (AP) — Two veterans of the senate wind up their services at this concluding session of the seventeenth congress—James A. Reed of Missouri, democrat, and George P. McLean of Connecticut, republican.

Each, oddly enough, goes out of his own accord, having declined to stand for reelection and each has served three terms—18 years. Both men occupy commanding positions in their parties in the senate by virtue of experience as well as ability. Senator Reed refused to run again when he announced his candidacy for the democratic presidential nomination last spring.

Besides these two, the senate will have at this last session of the present congress, six "lame ducks"—all democrats. "Lame duck" is an appellation applied to members of congress who have been defeated but who continue to serve by virtue of the short session of the old congress which follows election.

Continued efforts by Senator Norris of Nebraska, republican, to obtain a constitutional amendment abolishing the short session of the old congress following election of a new one have failed of approval.

Of the six senate "lame ducks" this session, all are first timers in the senate with the exception of Peter Gerry of Rhode Island. He has served two terms. The other five demonstrative senators who lost out in the election are Bayard of Delaware, Bruce of Maryland, Edwards of New Jersey, Neely of West Virginia and Mayfield of Texas. The latter was defeated for the nomination and will be succeeded by another democrat, Representative Tom Connally of Texas. The others lost to republicans.

The election, however, had an immediate effect on the make-up of congress this session. There will be four new faces in the senate, all republicans, elected to fill out terms of deceased or resigned members.

John Thomas of Idaho takes the place of the late Frank Gooding, Representative Burton of Ohio succeeds the late Frank Willis, whose seat was held temporarily by Cyrus Locher, a democrat; Octaviano A. Larrazolo serves out the term of the late Andrieus A. Jones of New Mexico, until next March 4. This seat is held by appointment by Bronson Cutting, who was elected to succeed Jones in the next congress.

Otis F. Glenn of Illinois, elected to fill the vacancy resulting from the resignation of Frank L. Smith, takes office immediately.

The terms of Glenn, Burton and Thomas will run until 1932, the original terms of their predecessors.

CITY READY FOR REMOVAL OF SNOW

Equipment Will Keep Streets Open All Winter, Officials Report

The city will be better prepared this year than ever to keep its streets clean of snow, according to Mayor A. C. Rule.

Its snow cleaning equipment now consists of one truck, one tractor, several plows, and one loader, and another large truck will be purchased within the near future. The one truck now owned by the city was purchased last week, as was a large snow plow used on trial last year.

College-ave and several more of the principal streets will be kept entirely free of snow, while thoroughfares on the outskirts of the city will be cleared of snow in the middle, it is believed.

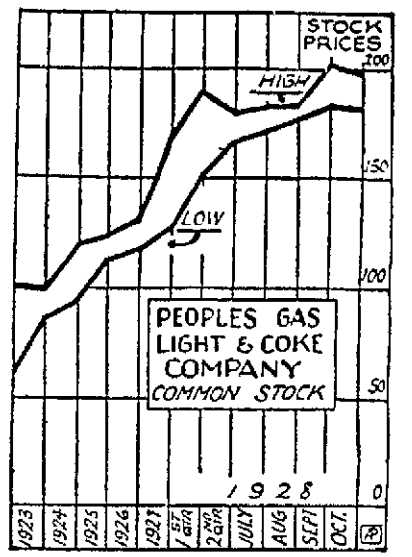

With the tractor and trucks in operation, the snow will be scraped off the streets to the curbs, and on the principal streets the loader will follow the plows, picking up the snow along the curbs and dropping into trucks.

Practically all the streets in the city can be cleared within 24 hours after a heavy snow storm, city officials believe.

Whenever a heavy storm appears, however, the plows will be drafted into use immediately. Instead of waiting until the end of the storm, this will prevent drifting and packing, and will make the work easier in the long run, it is pointed out.

GAS COMPANY OFFSETS RATE DROP BY SAVING

Chicago — (AP) — The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company supplies gas to the city of Chicago under perpetual charter and without competition. The Chicago by-products coke company was acquired early this year for $21,000,000, bringing the total daily capacity to about 150,000,000 cubic feet.

While a rate reduction April 1 has somewhat lowered the company's gross income, this is being offset by production economies through acquisition of the by-products coke plant. Output for 1928 is estimated at 40,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Net income has increased in recent years, after difficulties during the war and post-war years. The net in 1927 was $5,190,000, equal to $10.81 per common share, compared to $5,100,000 in 1926.

Dividends were resumed in 1922 at $5 a share after a 4-year suspension, and are now at the rate of $8 annually. Valuable subscription rights have also been granted in recent years.

2,500 ARE TAKING GOITRE TREATMENT

Weekly Portion Is Doled Out to Rural School Students in County

A total of 2,500 county rural school children are now taking the goitre prevention treatment each week, according to a report on the work submitted to the county board last week by Miss M. Klein, county nurse. Because there are sufficient funds left from the appropriation made by the board last year the board was not asked for more money this year. Each child receives a small portion of iodine once a week.

To show the need for the treatment, Miss Klein presented a report on a survey made in two sections of the county by Dr. V. A. Dudge, deputy state health officer. In the first survey 230 boys and girls were examined and 55 were found to be affected and in the second survey 198 boys and girls were examined and 59 were found to be infected.

Of a total of 221 boys, between the ages of 5 and 16 years, 52 had goitres, while of 207 girls, of the same ages, 63 were found to have goitres.

OLD PITCHER FOR NINE AT MANITOWOC IS DEAD

Manitowoc — (AP) — Adolph "Jim" Vollendorf, one of Manitowoc's baseball heroes 35 years ago, is dead. Vollendorf, who earned a place in Manitowoc's baseball history in the late 90's when he hurled the nine to victory over Connie Mack's Milwaukee Brewers, died Sunday morning. He was 54 years old and had been in ill health for three years.

"Jim" as the southpaw twirler was known throughout Wisconsin, was signed by Mack after the impressive demonstration, but was not used and was sent to Denver of the western league the following season. There he remained three seasons, returning to Manitowoc where he pitched for the home team for three seasons in the Lake Shore league. When his arm gave out he returned to stone cutting. He leaves a widow and two children.

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN HEALTH PROGRAM

That Outagamie-co rural school children are really interested in their health is indicated by letters recently received by Miss Marie Klein, county health nurse, telling her of work the youngsters are doing.

One letter was from the Two-Wilows school where the health officer, a student, reported that students were following the nurse's orders regarding good health. Another letter was from the sixth grade of Hillsdale school and contained the report that a health club had been organized and met every Friday and that students were all drinking milk and had gained a few pounds.

According to Miss Klein, the students in rural schools have been told of little health helps such as food and sleep which make for healthy youngsters. Many of the schools have organized health clubs and regularly check on how closely students follow Miss Klein's suggestions.

WASTED EFFORTS

On Wednesday before the Wisconsin-Minnesota game announcement was made by a prohibition unit that during the game the great stadium at Madison would be carefully policed by what scoffers call prohibition "snoopers." On Thursday the prohibition unit at Minneapolis announced that the many special trains bearing the seven thousand rooters to the game would be policed by prohibition agents who would join the Wisconsin ones in continuing to watch the crowds lest something be taken from a hip besides a fluttering handkerchief. On the day of the game the Surgeon-General of the United States Army announced that the carefully kept records of the army hospitals revealed that eleven hundred forty-seven soldiers of our army were admitted to hospitals during the last year to be treated for alcoholism, and stated that the use of intoxicants by officers and the enlisted personnel was rapidly becoming a major peace-time problem. These same army records disclose that alcoholism has steadily mounted upwards since 1918, going from less than one case in a thousand soldiers in that year to nearly nine cases for every thousand soldiers now.

All these news items pieced together tell a completed story.

There is a practical way of enforcing the prohibition amendment unless the government cares to admit that the whole prohibition business is a sham battle. To enforce prohibition is to stop the flood of illicit liquors constantly entering the country and principally from Canada, and to put out of business the steaming stills throughout the country that continue to supply our speakeasies with plenty of moon. When those things are accomplished football games will need no policing.

It is now one of the sights of Detroit to go down the river and watch the swift rum boats elude the government watchers. It is claimed that over ninety-five out of a hundred bottles that start from Canada reach their destination in safety. Of course this could never happen against a determined and resolute government bent on stamping out the trade. Nor could the thousands of speakeasies throughout the country continue to be daily supplied with their stuff as against a government with a practical and sensible plan of enforcement.

Spectacular tactics aimed at football games or at other meetings where vast crowds congregate, accomplish nothing. Worse than that sort of an effort tends to spread the mistaken notion that students are carrying as many flasks as pencils. The tens of thousands of young men and women who attend the great universities throughout the land have earned a better reputation than to be entitled to constant surveillance.

But we suppose prohibition directors like to go to great football games at the expense of the government and being once placed in a vast crowd where movement is practically impossible they may sit themselves down and watch the game with as much interest as anyone else. In the meantime the rum boats are scooting across the border and the stills continue to steam.

STRIPPING OUR FORESTS

Christmas is surprisingly near, and the slaughter of fir trees has already begun. One can be a whole-hearted supporter of Christmas and the decorated Christmas tree without approving of the ruthless cutting of evergreens every winter for this holiday.

Trees raised in nurseries, particularly for the Christmas trade, may be purchased and used with clear conscience. Small, live trees that are used indoors during the holidays and subsequently planted outdoors will prove a joy for years to come. Evergreen trees and shrubbery in the yard, decorated and lighted where they stand, not only satisfy the Christmas tree desire but add considerably to the holiday gaiety of the whole neighborhood. It is a pleasant custom that is spreading rapidly.

On the other side of the picture are the millions of trees that are stripped from their native woods and never replaced. It is time that something be done to check this needless waste. Cutting should be done with judgment and sense, and with as much interest in conservation and reforestation as in supplying the Christmas trade. It is perfectly possible and will be accomplished when enough families take an interest in saving the evergreens.

A NEW PAN-AMERICAN POLICY

It was suggested the other day, in a dispatch from a correspondent aboard the good-will battleship Maryland, that Mr. Hoover's southern tour might result in a "Hoover doctrine" replacing the Monroe doctrine. Some development along that line would not surprise anyone familiar with the growing resentment felt by Latin-American nations against the Monroe doctrine as ordinarily stated and applied.

The historic policy first declared by President Monroe, they argue, was intended to protect the struggling young republics of this hemisphere in their time of weakness by preventing European powers from gaining a foothold in their own territory, and indirectly intended to safeguard the United States. Today, they maintain, there are no Old World powers likely to threaten their freedom and sovereignty. They feel so particularly since the organization of the League of Nations, to which nearly all of them belong.

They like to feel that the United States stands ready to champion them in case of unforeseen danger, but they resent the attitude usually ascribed to Uncle Sam, of standing over them with a club, insisting on protecting them whether they want it or not. And some of the Spanish-American nations really fear what they call the "imperialistic policy" of the United States. They are afraid of being gobbled up by their protector.

There has long been a feeling among our Latin brethren, and also among many of our own people, that the purpose of the Monroe Doctrine could be served by a "Pan-American Doctrine," restating the principles of preserving America for Americans, North and South alike, and admitting the other members of the Pan-American Union to a share of responsibility for its enforcement.

If President-elect Hoover should work out some such policy on his trip, and announce it in his inaugural address, it would be regarded as one of the most significant steps ever taken by our government in foreign relations. It would be notice that America, from Canada to Patagonia, presented a united front to the rest of the world.

OUR SENATE EXTREMES

The stage is being set for a struggle over the Briand-Kellogg anti-war treaty when congress convenes in December. The administration naturally hopes for ratification. Most of the American people hope for it.

There does not seem to be any reason for partisan alignment on this treaty. It is based on a conviction which has been growing in the minds of the American people regardless of party. But there is never any telling how senatorial minds will react. In some quarters fear is expressed that enough opposition may be mustered in the senate to kill the treaty. There are isolationists so extreme that they do not even want to shake hands and pledge peace with Europe.

Just how effective this particular treaty may be as a preventative of war is problematical. Endless arguments are possible on the subject. But the least that can be said for ratification is this:

If the United States senate turns down this treaty, put through by American insistence and accepted by half a hundred other nations, it will be long before the statesmen and diplomats of foreign powers take American diplomacy seriously again.

Mr. Billerton, the butcher, was a jovial soul. As he was cutting up an order of lamb chops for a lady customer, she asked curiously: "Mr. Billerton, what led you to choose your present occupation?"

The goose had been carved, and everybody had tasted it. It was excellent. The negro minister, who was the guest of honor, could not refrain his enthusiasm.

"That's as fine a goose as I ever set my teeth in," Brother Williams, he said to his host. "What did you get such a fine goose?"
"Well, now, parson," replied the carver of the goose, exhibiting great dignity and reluctance, "When you preach a splendid good sermon, I never axes you what you got it. I hopes you will show de same consideration."

Two Southern dacks were swimming down the road one day, when a speeding car came upon them from behind and ran over one of them. When the dust had settled, the untouched one came out from under a culvert and surveyed his prostrate comrade.

"Yo, Ah is!"
"Yo is what?"
"Wha, yo' asked me is Ah dadd or is Ah am't, and Ah replied to you that Ah is!"
"Tas, but when Ah asks yo' is you is what, dadd or ain't, yo' replies that yo is. Now whaffo yo' makes responsible like such?"
"Why, because Ah is!"

Our own naval officials insist that our cruiser strength is woefully inadequate. England's navy men, on the other hand, are just as sure that our cruiser and auxiliary strength far outclasses their own. Both sides cannot be right. If someone could only sit the wheat from the chaff and tell us, authoritatively, exactly how the two navies compare, we could decide on this new naval construction bill a lot more intelligently.

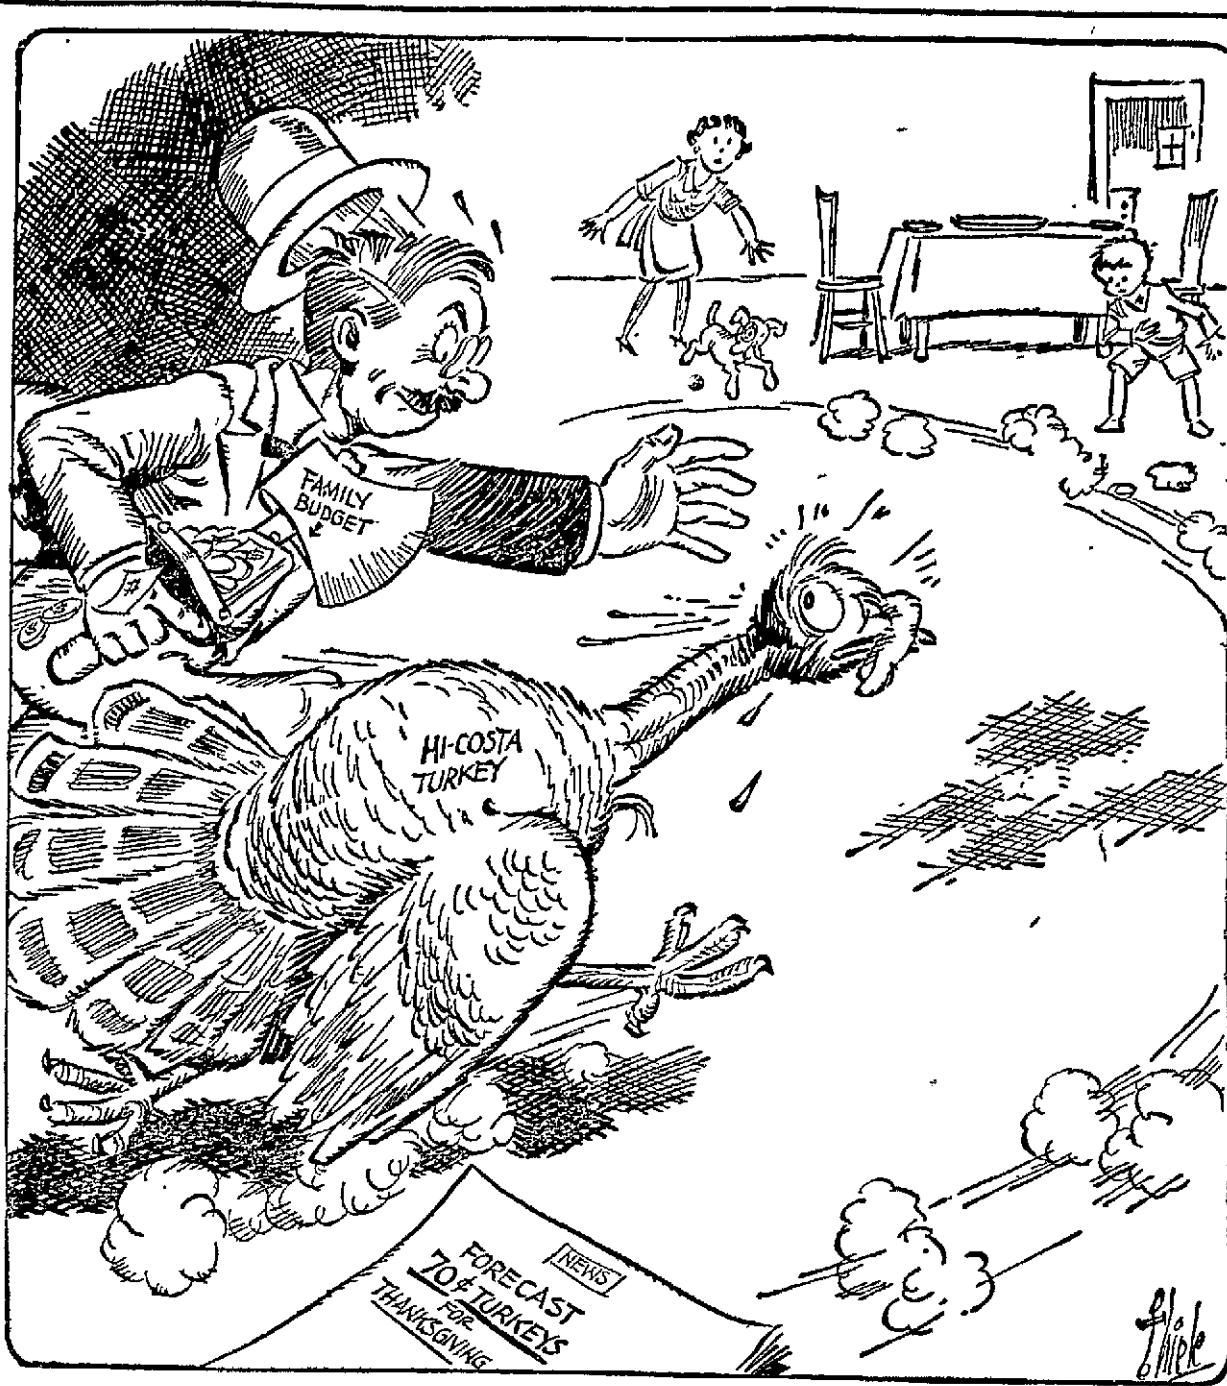

Now that the matter of new cruisers is again being pressed by the administration, it is to be hoped that someone can give us a detailed, unbiased account of our navy that will tell us just exactly where it stands in comparison with the navies of other powers.

VARICOSE VEINS AND HOW THEY HAPPEN

As yet we cannot arbitrarily specify the cause or causes of varicose veins. Among the generally accepted views are that man's upright posture, the superficial situation of the long veins, the muscular support, prolonged standing, habitual sitting in a slouchy posture, and constriction of leg or the body by clothing, are common factors of this troublesome condition. Formerly women were more frequently afflicted than men; today there seems little difference, or at least women now are comparatively less susceptible, perhaps due to better physical education and more hygienic habits of dress.

Of one thing we are fairly certain. Active daily exercise, say a six-mile walk at a fairly brisk pace, is beneficial to the circulation in the veins. Here is a good lesson in hygiene and every reader should take it away with him. Whether he is particularly interested in varicose veins or not, slouchy or relaxed sitting posture, prolonged standing, predisposes to varicose weakening of the long veins; yet active muscular exercise such as walking or running or dancing or rope skipping or bicycle riding or skating or climbing stairs, tends to prevent such trouble and in the early stage tends to cure it. How come? During exercise the muscles contract and relax, thus pumping the blood along toward the heart through the veins; during prolonged standing the muscles remain contracted, so there is no pumping effect, and indeed the muscular contraction prevents the blood from draining from the vein almost as much as gravity does.

Anyone whose occupation requires prolonged standing should be very cautious about it. That is, do not stand there in your tracks; keep moving. Never mind if you make your boss or your customer nervous; keep hopping or skipping about or rising on your toes and then on your heels, rocking, balancing, toing in, toing out, going backward, then forward, or doing a wee bit of a dance. If you haven't the nerve to be nervous, then the next best scheme to save your veins is this: Every hour duck over behind the counter or letter file, lie down on your back, lift both legs to vertical and actually or in imagination juggle a football with your toes for one minute.

Where there is no convenient letter file or counter provided for this, the next best thing you can do is to slip out in the corridor and roll yourself a few plain somersaults. This should take no longer than a minute, and it is less stealing, really, for you will do better and more work with the aid of this medicine.

We mentioned constriction of leg or body by clothing, as one factor of varicose veins. This means not only tight corsets around the legs, but tight shoes and belts or corsets. In my own opinion, I do not know whether this is a stand-by many physicians—any belt, corset, brace, harness or supporter, worn around the waist or upon the belly, predisposes to varicose veins, because such articles necessarily interfere more or less with normal and unstrained breathing, which is belly breathing, not chest breathing.

There are some who are preventive. What the reader who has persevered to this point probably wants is a cure. That, likely the interesting part of a good story, will appear in an early issue.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—This is, if you don't mind, the success story of a flea. But for the grace of Professor Heckler, the flea trainer, La Castillina might have perished on a lady's stocking from a single blow of a delicate palm. But for the patience of Professor Heckler, the flea trainer, La Castillina might now be a mere member of his flea ensemble, instead of the stellar attraction she happens to be. It is just possible that La Castillina possesses that subtle something denied to most fleas. She may have possessed a hidden talent for what they are pleased to call "the terpsichorean art."

At any rate there is no attraction on Broadway attracting so many quarters as La Castillina. No single bright star has more avid fans.

La Castillina is, one might say, mistress of the ballet at the "flea circus." In the past, when she, a Spanish dancer who Spanish dances as only a flea can Spanish dance is nobody's business.

To the credit of La Castillina, let it be said that she came out of something considerably less than obscurity and has wound up with something considerably more than fame. The word "ensemble" in its fleeting Broadway sense, can be applied to her. The newspapers have tried to photograph her; she has occupied columns of space and she draws the crowd.

Which is more than a great many Spanish dancers can boast.

If you are inclined to believe those masterpieces of fiction that issue from side-show splendors, then you must believe that the nomadic Professor Heckler, in his inexhaustible search for talent, came upon her in the Pyrenees. Let the Pyrenees Chamber of Commerce protest that all the fleas are in San Francisco, still and notwithstanding, Professor Heckler is firm—La Castillina is a Spanish flea—and none other. He will tell you that he found her in an inn that was somewhat less than humble. Had it been otherwise there would have been no fleas there—and La Castillina would never have had her chance.

Professor Heckler will not admit, as will so many other Broadway producers that he immediately recognized latent talent. Ask George White, ask Ed Zeigfeld, ask Earl Carroll—and they'll all admit, unblushingly, that they have seen talent where all others were blind. With Professor Heckler it was different. This was, so far as he was concerned, just another flea. But another flea to a flea trainer is always a potentiality. And he had still to learn what latent talents may be found in Spanish fleas. So La Castillina came to Broadway!

There she found, already produced in their glass arena, such products of the San Francisco dunes at Red Grange, who kicks a microscopic football; Henry, who juggles something that might be dust grains; Martin, the charlatan and Waterloo, who has long needed a new appeal. And this, if you believe the professor, she provides.

It was not long before La Castillina was queen of her own particular circus, the ballerina of freedom; the box office attraction of Hubert's museum. Today her name looms in bright lights and her more-or-less photograph adorns the advertisements La Castillina is a hit!

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington—Young gentlemen with Harvard accents, who feel at home in a tail coat, spats and stove pipe hats, and who rushed hastily into the revamped career foreign service of the government, are awaking to the sad fact that diplomatic life is not all pink tea and cocktails, to say nothing of beer and skittles.

They are actually being required to learn something about the manners, customs, politics and other things of the foreign lands to which they are assigned. Also, which is quite a change in policy, they are being required to stick at each post until they do so learn instead of skipping about from capital to capital.

DIPLOMATS SETTLE DOWN
Inquiry at the state department develops that diplomatic secretaries are now expected to remain at a post abroad for periods up to four years at a stretch. Examination of the records of many of the present day seniors in the service shows that they were shifted about four or five countries on opposite sides of the world in a similar period in the past.

Even more drastic, however, is the study being made of reports

OLD DEMOCRATIC CHIEF OF INDIANA NOW ON SIDELINES

Age and Infirmary Remove Tom Taggart from Present Struggles

Indianapolis.—(P)—Age and infirmity have removed Tom Taggart, maker of statesmen, from the political stage.

For the first time in 36 years he was on the sidelines this year while a struggle for presidential honors was waged and he was unable to lend a hand to his democratic party.

From a hospital bed the 72-year-old Indianapolis looked out on the struggle during most of this year's fight. Some of the time he heard, amid the sylvan isolation of his French Lick resort, the turmoil of the contest, muted and far away.

Thirty-six years old was Taggart, with the flush of his Irish nativity on his cheeks, when he burst upon the Indiana political stage. That was back in 1892 and Taggart became chairman of the state democratic committee. Three terms as mayor of Indianapolis fitted him for broader fields and in 1900 he was named to his party's national committee.

At every quadrennial meeting of the party until last summer's Houston convention, Taggart was a notable figure. Even at Houston his handiwork was visible in the proceedings. Evans Woollen an Indianapolis banker, was the master's choice for the nomination, and his name had a brief place in the deliberations.

Taggart advanced Thomas Marshall from the governorship of Indiana to the national arena, jockeying him to a place on the ticket with Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore.

After Marshall, the seer of French Lick sent Samuel Ralston's name to the New York convention and for a time it seemed the skillful steering of Taggart would bring Ralston the nomination that Smith and McAdoo contested so bitterly. Ralston had been governor and senator.

Taggart brought Woollen from his counting rooms to try for the senatorship against Arthur Robinson, the incumbent. So good a race did the banker run that Taggart promoted him for the presidential nomination.

Maker of governor and senators, Taggart himself could not obtain election to a national office. Governor Ralston appointed him to the United States senate in 1916 to fill an unexpired term. He failed of election two years later.

Taggart's interest in human beings has been attested by his memory for names and faces. He apparently knew every precinct and ward worker of his party.

$8,482,428 SPENT ON BADGER ROADS IN FISCAL YEAR

Wisconsin One of Seven
States to Receive Over
$3,000,000 Aid

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C.—Only seven states in the union, of which Wisconsin was one, received more than $3,000,000 for the improvement of roads from the Federal government during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, according to a report made Monday by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine. Illinois, Kansas, Iowa, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas were the other states to receive the maximum appropriations for expenditures on the Federal-aid highway project.

Through the Federal-aid highway improvement plan whereby the United States government pays 43 per cent of the cost and the state the balance, a total of $8,482,428.31 was spent upon the roads of Wisconsin during the year. Of this amount, the Federal government paid $3,933,658.45.

The figures, compiled by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, show that during the year 323.7 miles of improved roads were added to the state of Wisconsin through government aid. Also at the end of the year, 277.2 miles were under construction and 36.5 miles were approved. The Federal-aid highway system in Wisconsin includes 5,493.4 miles of which 2,046.9 miles have been improved through the assistance of the national government.

The mileage in Wisconsin which has been improved through Federal aid includes 208.6 miles of graded and drained earth roads, 104.4 miles of sand-clay, 1,042.2 miles of gravel, 6.8 miles of water-bound macadam, 13.7 miles of bituminous macadam, and 669.8 miles of Portland cement concrete. In addition to these roads, bridges have been built with a total of 1.4 miles.

Throughout the country, during the fiscal year 1928, improvement was completed on 3,184 miles of Federal-aid road which had not previously been improved with Federal assistance and advanced stages of improvement were completed on 2,914 miles. At the close of the year initial improvements were in progress in 9,494 miles and advanced or stage construction was under way at 1,255 miles.

The total cost of the improvements completed during the year was $205,043,784, of which the Federal government paid $53,056,984, and the various states the balance. The question of public ownership of toll bridges, of which there are 429 at present in the United States, nearly 75 per cent of them owned by private corporations, is being through investigated by the Bureau of Public Roads, MacDonald reported. Investigators have found that the private interests have been taking advantage of the hesitation of the states and the national government to build these bridges so necessarily expensive and yet so important.

Not only have the private promoters rushed to obtain exclusive franchises to build bridges at commanding locations, but have been sought to join the construction of free or publicly operated toll bridges in the courts, and have, in a number of cases, succeeded. It is in an effort to stop these tactics and to free the public from excessive toll rates, that efforts are now being made by the bureau to place Congress recommendations that legislative support be given the highway administration authorities of the Federal and state governments.

A movement, indicating the trend of thought gaining prevalence yearly through the country, to help enact legislation on the placing of advertising sign boards along the public highways, is also being planned by the bureau. Indignation at the present manner in which these sign boards are placed, marring the surrounding scenery and in many cases causing dangerous places, has been expressed by the Federal officials through Chief MacDonald, and it is expected that some work along this line will be accomplished during the coming year.

Splendid Recipe
To Stop A Cough
That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the gum-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu", are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

NEW FASHIONS

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BEAUTY HINTS

THE NEW Saint Sinner

Faith could find no better opportunity to "jack Cherry up" as Bob had suggested, than when the two were on a shopping expedition together.

The two sisters were seated in a luxurious little fitting room of Stanton's most exclusive department store, awaiting the return of the deferential saleswoman from looking over the stock of "junior" dresses.

"It's really a nuisance, having to buy my clothes in the junior department," Cherry observed with ill-concealed satisfaction, studying her tiny figure in the long mirror. "I'd like to be able to buy really grown-up clothes in the misses' or ladies' sections, but—"

"No, you wouldn't, you little fraud! You're intensely proud of being a small thirteen," Faith laughed indulgently. "But Cherry, darling, there's something I've been wanting to say to you—"

Cherry's golden eyes grinned wickedly, as she ran a pocket comb through her short copper-and-gold curls. "I knew it! Alan Beardsley! What a shame to pan him, when he's going to tea at the Randolph."

"That's just it," Faith protested seriously. "He's always taking you somewhere. You're with him rather constantly, honey, and you know how conspicuous you are in this town. You can't make a move without the old scandal 'being waked up.'"

"Scandals, not scandal, pet," Cherry corrected her sister nonchalantly. "Oh, here's Miss Schlosser," she said, as the saleswoman came. "Cherry had a gift for remembering saleswomen's names and thus endearing herself to them. 'No, not that! Too fussy! Not that—no! Put that one aside, please! Haven't you something in transparent velvet just the color of my hair? I suppose I'll have to go in for copper and brown and gold, as usual,'" she added to Faith.

"And every stenographer in town will be wearing brown this fall," Faith declared, as she looked at the dress. "Now darling, she began again after the saleswoman had departed on another quest. "Pitch into me all you like. But isn't he a duck?"

"Alan Beardsley is a very charming and distinguished man," Faith admitted, "which is all the more reason why you shouldn't hurt him."

"I think—"

"Cherry, with head held cocked impudently—"That Alan is capable of looking after himself. He's 36 years old, has been married and divorced, and wiggled out of a breach-of-promise suit. Oh, Alan knows his groceries, darling," she added inelegantly.

"But—does Cherry?" Faith persisted quietly. "Oh, darn that woman!" she exclaimed under her breath as the saleswoman re-entered the fitting room.

Not until they were waiting the arrival of the saleswoman expert did Faith have an opportunity to continue her "jacking up."

"I don't think Nils is looking very happy these days," she began cunningly, on a new tack. "I'm sure he hasn't scolded you, that's not his way, but you can't trifle with Nils."

"Trifle! Why Faith!" Cherry laughed artificially. "I must get pumps the exact shade of his velvet, and a hat too, of course, with a quill or something speckled just like the dress. Let's hurry and I'll give Alan a treat when he meets us for tea."

"You can alter this dress in two hours, can't you?" she turned imperiously to the sewing woman.

NEXT: Faith sees Cherry "at work" again.

Costumes For Several Uses For Ideal Wardrobe

Equally handsome for dinner or dance is a Patou cream colored satin gown, of unique cut and a stunning topaz and diamond pin.

An afternoon ensemble any wardrobe would welcome is of green velvet, with pekin trim. Different blouses change its character.

BY JEAN PATOU

PARIS. — I know of many women who spend a considerable sum of money each year at their couturiers, yet who somehow never convey the impression that they are able to do so. They do not look as perfectly dressed as they should. There are, on the other hand, women who spend considerably less, yet who contrive to dress perfectly. By this I mean that whenever you happen to meet them, they never attract attention because they are "dressed" as they should be for the "milieu" in which they are seen.

The only conclusion to draw from these observations is that in the constitution of her wardrobe lies the secret of the perfectly dressed woman.

ONE DRESS FOR TWO

I am well aware that a woman cannot possibly find time to change her clothes whenever she changes her occupation or past-time, but what many women lack or forget when planning a very complete wardrobe is a transitory type of dress serving two purposes. They will buy the exact type of sports suits, luncheon ensemble, afternoon dress and evening gown, and while each is perfect in its proper sphere none can be made to overlap. Each type of dress is characteristic of the couturier's idea and fills the requirements they were intended for, but what escapes many women is the need for an ensemble or two suitable for two different occasions.

There are afternoon coats, for example, suitable for a late morning's shopping. Yet worn over the right kind of dress, such a coat should not look out of place at a smart restaurant tea-party. The main idea is to avoid looking over-dressed while carrying on a shopping expedition and yet look appropriately garbed for a social function with the mere gesture of throwing back the wrap.

The return of the dressy tailored suit is a feature of fashion I welcome with great pleasure. Although women had abandoned it for a few seasons the suit is, in my opinion, one of the very becoming expressions of the mode. Although it has some point of resemblance to the dressy sporter prototype, the dressy "tailleur," granted it is made of appropriate material and completed by a well-chosen blouse, never looks

WRONG BOOKS HARM SICK SAYS SOCIAL WORKER

Boston.—(P)—When choosing a book for a sick friend in a hospital, consult the hospital social worker or librarian, suggests Miss Ida M. Cannon, chief of social service at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Any kind of book, explains Miss Cannon, is not suited to every patient. She warns that thrillers that arouse emotions to a high pitch and disturb the patient's rest should never be given to a sick person.

Defective stories of the type that make the patient desire to complete them before laying them down, she says, may work harm to a patient should not be given heavy books, that may be handled easily and without taxing their strength.

Women, she says, generally prefer love stories when ill, while men lean towards western and detective stories.

She also suggests that patients who should have rest and quiet.

DOUBLE PANEL. A crimson velvet frock has two overlapping front panels falling from the belt, each slanting to a point to give longer left-sided effect.

POINTED DECOLETTAGE. A bronze lace evening gown, with jeweled shoulder straps, has its square front and back neckline cut in sharp points.

RED TWEED. A red tweed suit, with tuck-in blouse of egg-shell colored crepe, has all-around box pleats that alternate the length they are stitched down, giving a novel, step-up and step-down skirt yoke.

out of place even in the dressiest of afternoon functions. This type of suit must be completed by an expensive fur neckpiece.

An important point to remember is that in fashions, as in any other form of decorative art, there is a woman will readily understand that between the dressy afternoon frock and the formal evening gown, the medium to achieve is the simple evening frock serving two purposes.

LACE A GOOD CHOICE

It must be sufficiently simple to do for an informal dinner party either at home or in a fashionable restaurant and still look as though it could never be worn at an afternoon function. This is one of the fine points that have to be mastered by women if they want to attain perfection in dress.

The formal evening gown is just as much out of place at a simple evening function as it would be if worn in the afternoon. The thing is to know just exactly what to wear not to look out of place in any circumstances. There are very few women who possess this instinct but when you do meet one, you single her out instantly.

A simple lace dress is one of the wisest choices for a dinner gown. Here you have the required "softness" and the dress cut on "evening" lines. This is a very happy vogue and one I have experienced great pleasure in expressing in my collection.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinymites began to hoot. They realized their parachute was going to save them from a fall. "We're lucky," Scouty cried. "When raindrops dropped and thunder boomed, I surely thought that we were doomed. We're safe within our boat, as long as we all stay inside."

They swayed on through the air with ease. The parachute was full of breeze and Clowny yelled, "Oh, look at it! It's like a big balloon. As long as not a thing goes wrong, I think there's cause for happy song. Come on, let's join together in a merry little tune."

They all agreed this plan was good and warbled loud, as best they could: "We're cheerful little Tinymites, held high up in the air. Our parachute is sinking slow. We do not know where it will go. Wherever that may be, we'll all be glad when we get there."

Then, Coppy, cried, "Look downward, please. I think I see a lot of trees!" "You're right," cried Clowny. "Sure enough! We're drifting now toward land. When we arrive right down on earth, let's try for all that we are worth to keep out of boat from tipping over. Get set to land a hand."

By this time there was little breeze. They floated safely through the trees and landed very gently in a pretty open space. Out on the ground the Tinies hopped. Then, suddenly the whole bunch stopped. A hunter, near at hand, exclaimed, "You're welcome to my place!" They walked right up and shook his hand and Mister Hunter said, "How grand! I'll now have lots of company for my Thanksgiving meal. I have a turkey I've just shot. You'll help me eat it, like as not. There's heaps for all. It matters not how hungry you may feel."

(The Tinymites help build a fire in the next story.)

CASTOR OIL IS EXCELLENT COLD KNOCKER

BY OLIVER ROBERTS BARTON

THIS is the season for coughs and colds. There is something particularly "gripping" about the chill damp air of November; also it is harvest for those germs with long unpronounceable names that attack the bronchial tubes and lungs.

Among children the head cold is commonest. After a few days it will dry up and disappear. Again it will "go down," tighten up in the bronchial tubes and chest and cause distress and violent coughing.

At this stage I should watch a child very closely. If he begins to look droopy, refuses to eat, and seems hot and feverish I should call in a doctor at once. A mother is usually quick to sense any symptoms that are unusual.

If the cough appears to be of the ordinary run a little home nursing likely will be all he needs. Camphorated oil is splendid rubbed well into his neck and chest at night and covered with a soft woolen cloth pinned firmly with safety pins to protect his night-clothes and the bed covers, also to keep his throat warm.

I do not believe in chest protectors for day time. The clothing should be warm enough and of proper cut to protect delicate organs. Extra things such as sweaters and chest protectors worn indoors have a tendency to make a child tender and more susceptible than ever to colds. Of course if the weather is extremely bitter and a school room not heated to the desired 68 or 70 degrees correct or indoor temperature, the matter of the sweater may be left to a mother's direction. One cannot give advice in any case of exception.

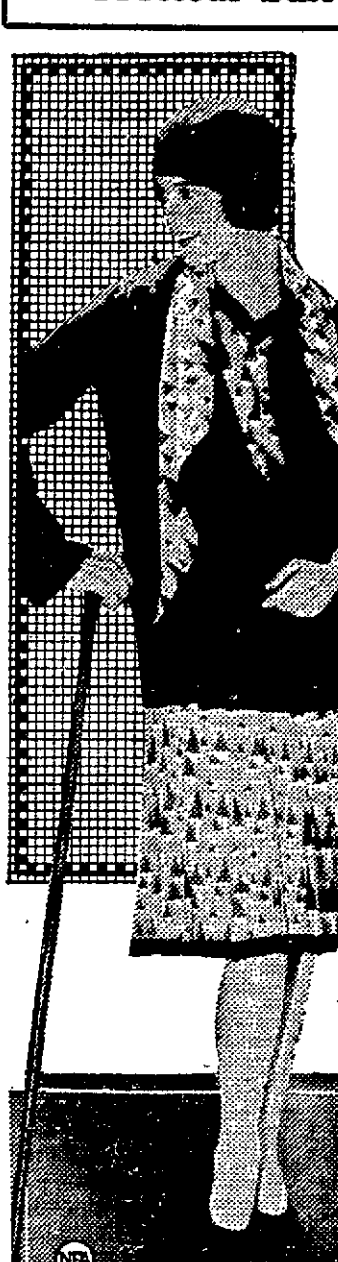

As far as that goes, no child with a cold should be allowed in school either. But how impossible that would be in a climate like ours when colds are as common as sparrows on a fence rail.

A good physic is never wrong treatment when a child has a cold. Indeed good old-fashioned castor oil is about as good a cold knocker as can be found.

Rest is necessary too. Send the child with a cold to bed early. And see that his window is wide open—but be sure to protect him from draughts. Set a screen between his bed and the window. If the weather is bitter the room air may be slightly warmed. But fresh air is absolutely necessary.

In avoiding colds, never allow a child to go out into cold air rubbed after a warm bath. If he has had a warm bath and must go out, see that he is rinsed with cold water. The cooler it is the less susceptible he will be to cold.

After a cool rinse he should be rubbed vigorously with a rough towel to start circulation.

SAFETY INSPECTOR FINDS DRINKS SAFE

Detroit, Mich.—Charged with the responsibility of giving five thousand men care and protection throughout their night work, Mr. Michael Barratt, 521 Holbrook Avenue, found his first responsibility that of keeping himself in shape to perform his duty. It is known as a problem until Mr. Barratt discovered that a simple change in diet cleared away his troubles and aided him in caring for his men. Speaking of the incident, Mr. Barratt says:

"After using one drink for forty years, I found it poor stuff to go to sleep on after obtaining a position as Night Safety Inspector in a large automobile plant in Detroit. "Giving up caffeine, I began to take other drugs in order to produce sleep but I was still unable to get the required amount of rest in the daytime so that I could be efficient in giving five thousand men the care and protection during the long night shift which presents greater hazards because of working under artificial light and unnatural conditions."

Ready to quit

"I became nervous and irritable through lack of sleep. Injuries to my men were more frequent and severe until I was almost ready to resign my position. My wife then bought a small can of Instant Postum, and gave me a cup before going to bed. I decided to give it a 30-day test and I can honestly say that my nerves were restored, my ambition aroused, and my accident-prevention work began to show splendid results because I was getting the proper amount of sleep."

"I recommend this drink to our men at every opportunity because they realize that it is a good habit to form. I now drink Postum as much as I used to drink coffee. My wife and daughter drink Postum twice a day. I can see a great improvement in their complexion and vitality since they gave up coffee. We consider it the most economical and beneficial beverage that science has produced."

Safety first!

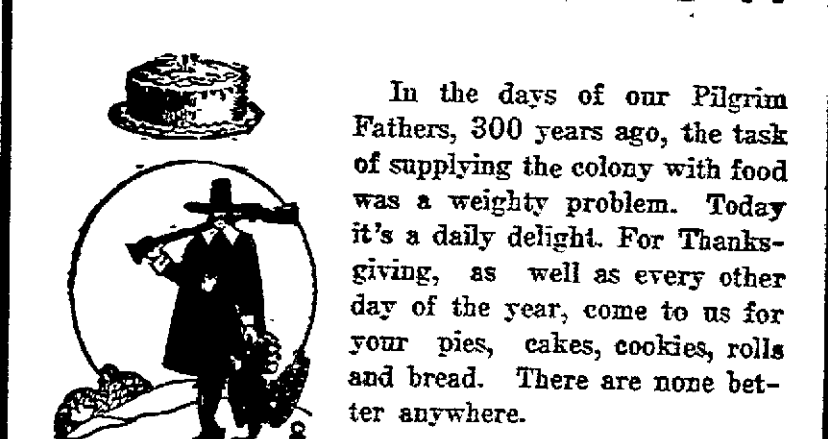

Isn't it foolish to continue using a beverage known to contain a drug stimulant, when you can get the same meantime enjoyment from a safe drink? Follow the wise lead of Mr. Barratt and millions of other Americans—eliminate caffeine from your diet—make Postum your meantime drink instead.

Try this change for just thirty days—you'll see the difference! A difference in the way you sleep, in the way you feel—even in the way you look!

For Postum contains no caffeine, no drug of any kind. Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran—nothing in it to disturb sleep, to harass nerves, or affect digestion. Postum has such a wonderful flavor, too! A rich, distinctive flavor that millions prefer!

Your grocer has Postum in two forms—Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup, and Postum Cereal, prepared by boiling. Both cost much less than other meantime drinks—only one-half cent a cup. Order today—start your 30-day test!

MOSCOW MUSHROOMS Russians serve mushrooms in innumerable appealing ways. One of the most delectable is made as follows: Boil a pound of mushrooms, pink ones if obtainable, very gently in salt water until tender. Drain carefully. Beat one egg and jump the cooked mushrooms around in it. Then put them, again carefully so they will stay whole, into a pan of hot butter and brown evenly. Serve on round pieces of toast, garnished with water cress.

STAGE And SCREEN

"OUTCAST"

It is always a severe test of a motion picture player's ability and art to bring to the silver screen a role previously created on the speaking stage, especially if that role has become intimate actress's career. But Corinne Griffith need have no qualms about having stepped into the stellar role of the screen version of "Outcast," the Henry Hubert Davies play, which first brought Elsie Ferguson into overnight fame. If Miss Griffith were not already in the front ranks of the cinema's dramatic stars, she, too, would have gained her spurs by the excellent performance she gives in "Outcast," as was evidenced last night at the Elite Theatre where this highly interesting love story had its initial showing.

Miss Griffith is one of the few emotional actresses who is equally at home in comedy or tense drama. Her light moments in the role of the girl of San Francisco's tenderloin, who not only rises above her own environment, but also becomes an uplifting influence in the lives of the man she loves, were played with whimsicality and charm. There is always a convincing human quality in this beautiful star's character delineations, which marks her work with intense sincerity.

Edmund Lowe also gives a very finished performance in "Outcast" in the role of Miss Griffith's lover, and others who should be commended for faithful interpretations of their roles are Kathryn Carver, who makes the best of a rather unsympathetic part, Louise Fazenda, always a clever character actress, Huntley Gordon, Sam Hardy and James Ford, a promising young newcomer.

"THE COSSACKS"

John Gilbert is an incessant source of surprise with each of his new roles. The Yankee boy in "The Big Parade" was a far different character from his Vronsky in "Love" and "Bardelys" and the hero of "Twelve Miles Out" were equally far apart. And now comes something new, even for Gilbert—his role as a swashbuckling, braggadocio Cossack soldier, who, under his veneer of bravado, has the soul of a poet. It is a complicated role, and one that grips the very heart. It thrills with its sheer drama, and baffles by its truth of life.

Such is John Gilbert as Lukashka in "The Cossacks," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of the Russian steppes, now playing at Fischers Appleton Theatre. It is a stupendous drama; huge in its great settings—a complete town was built as a locale for the play—huge in its great drama of the love of a father and son, and through it runs the central theme, the sweet love story of a boy and a girl. Incidentally Renee Adoree is the girl—Gilbert's sweetheart of "The Big Parade," and just as in this play, the surge and sensations are all a frame or setting for the delicate romance that the audience follows throughout. Frances Marion made a masterpiece of the story. George Hill a triumph of the direction, and John Gilbert made a classic in acting out the principal role.

The Cossacks, brought from Europe for the picture, stage feats of horsemanship that astound, and the battle scenes are remarkable. The character honors go to Ernest Torrence, as the brutal old Cossack fighting chief, whose love for his son is as pure as his giant frame. Mary Alden as the Russian mother, Dale Fuller as mother of the heroine, Paul Hurst as the Cossack lieutenant, are splendidly cast and Torke Sherwood is clever in the comedy relief. Coldly menacing is Joseph Mari as the Cossack chief, and Neil Neely and Josephine Borio two very charming young people in adequate roles. "The Cossacks" is one of those pictures that one simply cannot afford to miss, and that one can never forget.

High School Basketeers Meet Neenah Quintet, Dec. 14

HANDFUL OF VETS MUST BE WHIPPED INTO SHAPE SOON

First Practice Will Start When Home Room Games Are Completed

It's just one tough job after another, this coaching job, and Joseph Shields of Appleton high school seems to have his troubles. He just finished almost three months worrying and studying to keep a football team at the height of its playing ability and now with the end of the season he has to gather together a basketball team by Dec. 14. His opponent that evening will be Neenah high school five, a gang of youngsters that has been practicing for more than a week already. The game will be played at Neenah.

A few of Shields' boys have been working out a couple times a week for the last two weeks while others are now getting their training in home room games. The youngsters who started the first week are Coach Benny Rafter, center, Mike Gochner, forward, Bill Tams, Norman Knip, Russell Smith and William Poole of last year's second squad.

The season's first regular workout was supposed to have started Monday night but Coach Shields chose to complete the home room schedule first. He now has announced that practice will get under way Tuesday night.

Several veterans of past season's play will report to Coach Shields when he starts variety practice periods. Among the men are Bobby Kuntz, guard, Jake Schaefer, guard, and Berg, forward, and if they can be gotten into fair condition by the middle of the month may put up a strong front against the Neenah five.

Fourteen games now are carded on the high school schedule, seven at home and seven "on the road." The season opens on Dec. 14 and continues through to the middle of March, the last game being with Marinette here on March 15.

Kaukauna will come to Army G in the second game of the year, Dec. 21 and a return game will be played at Kaukauna on Feb. 12. The valley conference games will not get started until Jan. 4 when the highs meet Sheboygan at Sheboygan.

The season's schedule:
Dec. 14—Appleton at Neenah.
Dec. 21—Kaukauna at Appleton.
Jan. 4—Appleton at Sheboygan.
Jan. 11—Fond du Lac at Appleton.

Jan. 16—Appleton at Marinette.
Jan. 25—Neenah at Appleton.
Feb. 1—Sheboygan at Appleton.
Feb. 8—Green Bay, W. at Appleton.

Feb. 12—Appleton at Kaukauna.
Feb. 15—Appleton at Green Bay.
Feb. 22—Green Bay, E. at Appleton.
Mar. 1—Appleton at Green Bay.
Mar. 8—Appleton at Fond du Lac.
March 15—Marinette at Appleton.

WILCE INDEFINITE ON FUTURE PLANS

1929 Schedules Shows Ambitious Program for Big Ten Teams

BY PAUL R. NICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer:
Chicago—The Big Ten 1928 football championship campaign is over, but the future plans of Coach Jack Wilce of Ohio state, next season's heavy schedule, election of captains, claims for all-American and all-conference honors and the forth-coming convocation of athletic officials provided plenty of post-season chatter Tuesday.

Just as in the hectic race itself, it was a big chance for second guessing all over the conference, and only the school that seemed certain. Beyond admitting he had several "attractive offers," Coach Wilce, who resigned as Ohio State mentor following the storm of alumni criticism last year, refused to comment on reports he had been offered posts at Harvard, Nebraska, Dartmouth and even another chance at Ohio State.

"There are many things to be considered," Wilce said, "but I am not at liberty to speak. I am fond of Columbus and perhaps would not care to move from here. I have my medical profession and may decide to devote my full time to it. Just now it is too early to say what I am going to do."

A survey of the 1929 schedules, which have been virtually completed, reveals an ambitious program for Big Ten teams. Aside from the usual number of conference games, four important inter-conference games have been scheduled with eastern teams. Harvard will come west to play Michigan, the Army will invade Illinois, Coach Alonzo Stutz will take his Chicago eleven to Princeton to battle the Tigers, and Colgate and Wisconsin will clash at Madison. After a lapse of several years, Indiana will meet Notre Dame and Coach Pat Fahey of the Hoosiers has decided to make his first scouting tour to Notre Dame by watching them play the university of southern California Saturday at Los Angeles.

Iowa and Michigan have framed the heaviest conference schedule, each playing six games while the other teams play five. Only two captains have been selected by Big Ten teams for next year so far. Both are from Chicago. Pat Kelley was chosen to lead Chicago, while Russell Crane, a guard, will lead Illinois, who will be gunning for a third straight championship.

Two scalpers of tickets for the recent Chicago-Illinois game were arrested and fined $25 by Chicago authorities.

NOW THAT THE SEASON IS ABOUT OVER

Wisconsin Proclaims 1928 One Of Greatest Grid Years

"Suicide Schedule" Hurt Badgers Only in Last Game

Madison—(AP)—The Western conference football championship is a badly muddled affair, but although defeated by Minnesota, and with a percentage lower than those of other teams, the University of Wisconsin is proclaiming its most successful season since the championship days of 1912.

In a rigorous eight game schedule, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite developed a team that on successive weekends upset Michigan, Chicago, Alabama and Iowa and included Notre Dame among its victims.

When the 1928 Wisconsin football schedule was announced, it was termed "the suicide card," for the Badgers faced seven major contests of eight games.

First to come before the Wisconsin team, composed largely of inexperienced men, was the famed University of Notre Dame eleven from South Bend, Ind. Critics conceded the Badgers no chance. The staunchest Wisconsin follower gave the team no victory, but on Oct. 6, in Randall Stadium here, the Cardinal rose, surged and defeated Rockne's numbers 22 to 6. It was a stunning blow to the football world, and from an opinion that Wisconsin had a hopeless sophomore team, rose the cry of "champion."

Ever alert in the game, in the first period William Kettler, junior tackle, blocked a Notre Dame punt. The ball rolled from the end zone and it was a safety. The Irish came back and behind the brilliant John Niemiec smashed over a touchdown. There the half ended, 6 to 2.

Using only a straight, smashing, running attack and two pass plays, Wisconsin scored two touchdowns, the first after Milton Gantenbein, sophomore end, fell on a missed punt on the two-yard line and Kenneth Bartholomew, sophomore halfback, then had gone around end for a touchdown, and the second on a pass, "Bo" Cuisinier, senior quarterback, to Lewis Smith, junior end, in the third period. The final score came in the fourth period on a pass, Sam Behr, sophomore halfback, to Cuisinier, who ran 40 yards for a touchdown.

The next week, Cornell college, Mt. Vernon, Ia., came to Madison, for Wisconsin's only easy game, and the Badgers ran wild, winning 49 to 0. Wisconsin scored seven touchdowns and as many points after touchdowns, leading 31 to three touchdowns in each period.

"The Purdue complex," the death knell in Wisconsin football, almost sent the Badgers from the Big Ten race at Lafayette, Oct. 20. The Boilermakers, trounced the week before by Minnesota at Minneapolis, showed a reversal of form and slipped over two touchdowns in the first five minutes on Wisconsin misplays.

However, the Badgers retaliated and unleashing a furious pass attack in which a brilliant sophomore halfback, William Lusby, and Cuisinier featured, rushed two touchdowns over in the second period. Both teams missed goal tries.

Purdue's final score came in the third period, but again the Wisconsin pass attack was good and the score was tied at 19 and 19.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The Brooklyn are willing to give the Pittsburgh for Getty and Gink Hendrick for Getty and Gink Hendrick doesn't hit enough... Notre Dame and Iowa have rotten press accommodations.

Wisconsin's traditional rivals, Chicago, came to Madison for the Badger homecoming Nov. 10, and proved a match for the fast, precise Badgers, who easily won, 25 to 0. At no time was there a doubt to the victory and only fundamental pass and running plays were used. The Maroons threatened only once, then when they received the ball on the 1-yard line, but the Badger forward wall was a Gibraltar, and aided by two stalling penalties took the ball on the 12-yard line.

Prayers went up in Iowa during the week of Nov. 11 for rain and plenty of it. Wisconsin reverently asked for dry weather. The Hawkeyes were answered, but the Badger eleven upset the Big Ten dog bucket on a soggy field defeated the heavy, unbeaten University of Iowa football team, 13 to 0, Nov. 17.

The Badgers were consistently the underdogs and sporting critics could see no victory if the wet day was to stop the passing attack, which had counted so heavily during the season.

However, the wily Thistlethwaite spent the week on running plays, worked Lusby to outpace McLain, the gigantic Iowa fullback and developed a close secondary defense. The strategy worked and the Badgers turned the trick. The first score came late in the third period when the elusive Lusby returned an Iowa punt 65 yards for a touchdown and the second score was made when Casey, sophomore end, recovered a fumble behind that goal that McLain had made. Kresky added a goal from placement.

But then came the last game of the schedule and the Badgers, perhaps a bit weary and groaning under the "suicide schedule" fell before the onrushes of Nagurski, giant Minnesota fullback. The Badgers were defeated by a better team and although they failed to win the pennant, the season ended gloriously.

GEORGIA TECH MAY PLAY CALIFORNIA

Would Be Pleased to Consider Playing in Rose Bowl Tourney

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—Georgia Tech, undefeated and untied in a strenuous season, would be "pleased to consider" an invitation to meet California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena on New Year's day.

Prof. A. H. Armstrong, Tech's business manager, advised Monday night that Tech would be formally invited to meet the Pacific coast eleven, said he had received no advice to that effect, although it was probable that some communication was even then in the mails.

No other officials at Tech would indicate what the Athletic council at Tech would do about the invitation pending further advice, which were expected momentarily.

GYMNASIUM BULGES AS VIKINGS REPORT FOR CAGE PRACTICE

Twenty-one Varsity Men on Floor With About Forty Frosh Hopes

Just why Lawrence college should have a large new gymnasium was proved conclusively Monday evening when the Viking varsity basketballers and freshman cagers crowded into Alexander gymnasium in answer to a call for basketball men.

Down in one end there were about 21 varsity cagers, the group being the best basketball talent in the three upper classes. But down in the other end, bumping into each other and floundering around were something like 40 or 50 frosh hopes, one of the largest turnouts for a first year class in many years.

Just what the coaches will do with the gangs, especially the frosh, to weed out the mediocre players from the good ones is a question. The frosh squad probably will be sifted down to about 15 men and with the poor facilities for giving all the youngsters a chance it's likely that some good material will be sent back to Brokaw, dejected and down hearted. Coach Joseph Trepanitis will handle the yearling basketballers.

The large varsity squad of course doesn't make Coach Denny a bit puffed although he admits he's got a tough job picking teams. It's the coaches opinion that he has about 16 men of 21 or 22, that are on a par, the few remaining chaps still being in the rough stage.

Denny smiles when he looks over his material which is probably the best he's ever had from the point of quantity. But he'll chuckle when he reminds you that his first game is still a long way off, Jan. 4, 1929, and that's a mighty nice period in which to get the boys to where they'll be raring to go when the season gets underway.

Lawrence has an ambitious schedule this year with 15 games now on the card and possibility of at least one more being scheduled. There are no preliminary games on the books this season because they have failed to draw fans. The first game is with Hamline university and counts in the Midwest conference.

TOUGH ON THE OLD MAN
In the wee small hours the morning of the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game there was much making merry in one of the hotels in South Bend. The Notre Dame boys on one side of the court were throwing fast cracks across into the windows of the Carnegie Tech boys and there was much fun.

One Little Notre Dame fellow, obviously a freshman and a very young one was making the most noise when a deep bass voice boomed from a window on the top floor. "Why don't you shut up and go to bed?"

And the little Notre Dame freshman, and a very young one, didn't take a minute to reply in a voice almost as loud: "I can't go to bed. I'm waiting up for my little boy."

THISTLETHWAITE MAKES BID FOR COACHING HONOR

Work at Wisconsin Recalls He Has Led Many Teams to Top

Madison—(AP)—Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite of the University of Wisconsin football teams is making a bid as football's miracle man. The Phi Beta Kappa, who makes coaching his profession, has twice brought Western Conference football teams from the Big Ten slough to a high spot in the league.

First, at Northwestern university, Thistlethwaite, lifted a team from the bottom of the conference league in five coaching seasons and brought them two unofficial conference championships. Then, in 1927, after years of waddling in Big Ten depths, Wisconsin called him.

His team that year won four and lost four games. Then, this season, with a number of brilliant sophomores he built a team that proved a devastator.

Coach Thistlethwaite is a graduate of the class of 1908 at Earlham college, Indiana. He started his coaching career at Illinois college, Jacksonville, where his football teams won three, and lost three and tied one game.

After two years service in Illinois alma mater called, and Glenn Thistlethwaite coached teams there for four years during which time Earlham won the Indiana college football championship and hung up 22 victories, seven defeats and one tie.

In 1913, Oak Park high school, Ill., signed the coach as athletic director and from then until 1922, his teams won 73 victories and lost nine games. Included in the record were half a dozen championships, three of which were interstate titles and one a national honor. On his Oak Park teams, Coach Thistlethwaite had seven men, who later led western conference teams.

Northwestern secured Thistlethwaite in 1922 and he ushered a new era of football to Lake Michigan's shores. In spite of the mediocre condition Northwestern football morale was in and as a result there were lean football years, the coach saw his team win 23, lose 16 and tie one game.

Coach Thistlethwaite's all-time record stands at 138 victories, 39 defeats and four ties. The Minnesota-Wisconsin game Saturday is not included.

Badger Alums Present "Thisty" With Watch

Madison—(Special)—The disappointment in Wisconsin's failure to defeat Minnesota in the championship game here last Saturday has been greatly offset by a feeling of pride among alumni, students and fans toward a plucky team that survived a most strenuous schedule with but one loss.

There is not a single Badger enthusiast who does not feel that the season just completed was successful in every sense of the word. Furthermore, these same folks proclaim Glenn Thistlethwaite's 1928 eleven as one of the best gridiron aggregations in the country. The fact remains that there are but one or two prominent teams that have not suffered at least one set-back this fall. None of these have been plotted against the Gophers when they were playing their best game. Wisconsin has a clear claim to second place in the Big Ten after completing the "suicide schedule" with victories over Notre Dame, Cornell College, Michigan, Alabama, Chicago and Iowa. Only an early season tie game with Purdue stands between the Thistlethwaite crew and a first place position in the conference, for the Illini leaders today, took one on the nose from Michigan.

Coach Thistlethwaite has made a place for the Cardinal in the football sun, not only in respect to the western conference but also nationally. An expression of alumni appreciation was shown here Sunday morning when an elaborate breakfast was given Coach Thistlethwaite, his staff and team at the Lorraine hotel.

At this gathering the Wisconsin alumni board, through several of its most prominent members, assured the silent Glenn that his team was one of the greatest, if not the best, in the history of football here, and that there was nothing but congratulation for a squad that performed as did the Badgers against their northern neighbors from Minneapolis on Saturday. The board presented Thistlethwaite a beautiful watch as a token of their appreciation.

Glenn Thistlethwaite played a glowing tribute to his captain, Ruben Wagner, when he said, "Just give me a leader like Wagner, and I'll always have a great team." Wagner and Binish, a pair of tackles respected by all teams that opposed Wisconsin the past two years, have passed from Badger athletics, as have graduates in the spring.

Four other veterans, "W" men played their last for the Cardinal against Minnesota. They are Joe Kresky, a guard who ranks with the best in the middle west in his first year at this position after two seasons in the backfield; Bo Cuisinier, popular little quarterback, generally classed as one of the leading field generals in the country today; Gene Rose, halfback and Gordon Connor, a guard.

ELK CLUB ALLEYS OPEN TO PUBLIC THURSDAY

Bowlers in the Catholic Order of Foresters league and the Lutheran Brotherhood have no games scheduled for Thursday evening, according to officials of the Elk club and the alleys therefore will be open to the public. CHICAGO CUBS TRYING TO GET SPRING GAMES

Chicago—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs are attempting to arrange a series of spring exhibition games with the Detroit Tigers at either Phoenix, Ariz., or Los Angeles. Because the Pacific Coast league will start its championship season on the last Tuesday in March, it will be necessary for the Cubs, who will train at Catalina Island, to seek new opponents for their exhibition games.

MEN WHO SMOKE AND GUARD THEIR HEALTH, SMOKE CIGARS

85% of the Doctors interviewed on the Staff of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore—are Cigar Smokers

THIS survey offers conclusive testimony of the smoking preferences of members of the medical fraternity. Cigar smoking never degenerates into a mere nervous habit. To enjoy the rich flavor of the cigar to the full, slow smoking is a necessity. One is not lighted from the end of another in cringing obedience to "nerves." Nor does the average cigar smoker inhale. And inhalation is a primary cause of nerve irritation.

It is the opinion of medical authority that throat troubles so prevalent amongst smokers are due to the burning, drying effect of hot tobacco smoke upon the tender tissues of the throat. Cigars cannot be the cause of these troubles—for, to quote a prominent New York throat specialist: "Cigar smoke is cool, since the tobacco burns slowly and is cooled and filtered as it is drawn through the body of the cigar, and no quick-burning substance is used for wrapper."

Make this test for a week—smoke cigars exclusively and you will find yourself feeling better with no cough or throat irritation, improved nerves, increased vitality and less of that tired feeling. To really test cigars with justice to yourself and to cigars, we suggest the test be made with La Palinas.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES TO FEATURE THANKSGIVING DAY

New York University Will Play Oregon Aggies in Yank Stadium

New York (AP)—Three of the east's greatest eleven have chosen to pick intersectional foes for the grand finale of the season.

New York university, with as great an all-around aggregation as there is in this sector, tackles the Oregon Aggies on Thanksgiving day at the Yankee stadium. The Army, another eleven that has known defeat only once this season meets Stanford in the big battle of the east on Saturday. On the same day Georgetown, turned back only by Carnegie Tech, goes into the west to wind up the season with a battle against Detroit, one of the very small company of unbeaten and united teams.

Special interest attaches to the N. Y. U. Oregon Aggie game for it marks the last collegiate appearance of Ken Strong, powerful battering ram of the Violets' attacks.

Stanford's army will test Army's mettle to the limit at the Polo grounds and Brazil and Cornell will need to be at their best to help Detroit beat Georgetown. Saturday's other outstanding feature is the traditional battle between Boston college and Holy Cross. The Eagles of Boston college stand alone in this sector in that they have escaped both defeat and tie. Holy Cross has been beaten by Fordham and Brown and tied by Harvard and Marquette but records are tossed into the discard when these two old rivals meet.

Aside from the New York university-Oregon Aggies fray, and that's invasion of Indianapolis to meet Butler, the Thanksgiving day schedule is marked by a renewal of ancient rivalries.

Cornell is conceded little or no chance of halting Paul Scull and the rest of Pennsylvania's backfield and West Virginia's Mountaineers are favored to trim Washington and Jefferson. Pittsburgh figures to handle Penn State without much trouble.

Two of the most closely contested battles of the day will bring together Columbia and Syracuse at Baker Field, New York, and Brown and Colgate at Providence.

ONE OPEN DATE ON U. W. GRID SCHEDULE

Will Bring Colgate University to Camp Randall Oct-5

1929 SCHEDULE
Sept. 28—South Dakota State at Madison.
Oct. 5—Colgate at Madison.
Oct. 19—Notre Dame at South Bend.
Oct. 26—Iowa at Madison.
Nov. 2—Purdue at Madison.
Nov. 9—Chicago at Chicago.
Nov. 16—Open date.
Nov. 23—Minnesota at Minneapolis.

WISCONSIN will play Colgate university in an intersectional game at Camp Randall in 1929, it has been announced by Glenn Thistlethwaite, head football coach at Wisconsin. The game will be played Oct. 5, and an agreement has been signed for this game only, no return game in the East being included in the contract.

The signing of Colgate gives Wisconsin one of the most consistently powerful of all the Eastern teams as a foe here at a time when it is hardly possible that either team will have been beaten. Wisconsin has not played an Eastern foe in so long that exact dates are hard to get.

Open Season Sept. 28
The Wisconsin schedule for 1929 is completed with an opening game Sept. 28 against South Dakota State. The South Dakota eleven is uniformly a good team that will give Wisconsin the necessary battle in order that the Badgers may be in top shape for the intersectional game the following week with Colgate.

In addition to the South Dakota and Colgate games, Wisconsin will meet five Western Conference foes and also Notre Dame. The game with Notre Dame is scheduled for Oct. 19 and will be played either at South Bend or at Soldier's Field, in Chicago. If Notre Dame stadium is complete, the game will be played in South Bend; otherwise, it will probably be fought out at historic Soldier's Field.

Northwestern, Iowa, Purdue, Chicago and Minnesota are the Big Ten teams as they appear on the Wisconsin schedule. Northwestern, Purdue, and Iowa will be met at Madison, while Chicago and Minnesota will be met on foreign grounds.

Play Gophers Last
For the second consecutive year, Minnesota will appear last on the Wisconsin schedule, and the Badgers will be sure of being in good shape for the Gophers because of an open date the week before the Minnesota fracas.

It is doubtful if there is a school in the Middle West that will have a tougher schedule than Wisconsin's. Only one school is on the schedule that might be termed a fairly easy foe, and even South Dakota State is a powerful enemy on an opening date.

The signing of Colgate leaves the way open for an agreement with some other eastern school for a series in 1930 and 1931 since Wisconsin has not tied itself down by any two year agreements.

MUCH ADO about SEVERAL THINGS by G.R. McIntyre

Someone always has to spoil a good thing. And Sunday Kaukauna put a crimp in the Catholic junior league when it came over here to play the St. Joseph junior high eleven with a whole flock of "ringers." One of the men graduated in 1926 and two others were members of this season's Kaukauna high school football team. Coach Mel Heinritz watched the proceedings for more than a quarter and then called halt and took his team from the field, a highly proper thing to do.

There was no use letting some of those 12 and 13 year old youngsters who have worked hard in practices and harder over their text books, get battered up by a gang of bruisers five and six years old. As it was the youngsters battered holes in the Kaukauna line and stopped runners well enough to leave the field with a 0-0 tie. They weren't afraid of getting beat, however, that we know for we've seen them trimmed twice. Had one of them been seriously hurt in the melee that would have followed football might have been dropped indefinitely at St. Joseph. That's the reason Coach Heinritz sought to forestall and he should be complimented for his action.

The Packers tried to play a football game without Eddie Kotal last Sunday and look what they received for their troubles, a 26 to 0 beating. Again we arise to say that the Packers without Kotal's running and passing and receiving aren't worth a plugged nickel. We had a letter from Eddie Saturday and he said he was walking despite the battered knee. Apparently he wasn't walking enough to be able to play, however.

The wrestling match which was scheduled for Appleton Tuesday night was called off last week because of the alleged injury of Karl Pazella. Personally we think the match was cancelled because of lack of interest. Boxing hasn't paid here for several years and there's fat chance of making wrestling show on the right side the ledger. George Hill, Pazella's opponent for the evening was billed as an Appleton favorite. The promoters erred there — he was an Appleton favorite but has been forgotten in the seven or eight years that have elapsed since his hey-day around local hangouts.

Philadelphia — Davey Abad, Panama, outpointed Pete Nebo, Florida (10).

ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, has had a baby. And the whole town's talking. There are plenty of people who credit the story of Sybil's marriage. It was an unfortunate affair and at the time seemed advisable.

Sybil was married in Havana harbor to RICHARD EUSTIS, whom she met on shipboard and who wooed her ardently for five days. The marriage lasted two weeks, when Sybil left her husband for justifiable reasons and returned to Boston with MABEL BLAKE, a social worker, with whom she was vacationing at the time.

Weeks later she learned that she was going to have a baby. Then it became necessary to tell her family and also CRAIG NEVILL, who had been her sweetheart. The marriage was formally announced and Sybil's child was born. She had fully expected to be indifferent to the baby because of the hatred she bore his father. But, to her own amazement, she worships her son with all her heart. She baptizes him EDWARD THORNE in memory of her own father and renounces for him HIS father.

Sybil's brother, TAD, is married to a quarrelsome little girl named VALERIE. Valerie quarrels with the whole family and leaves, in one of her tantrums to visit friends in New Haven. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXII

Tad breathed a sigh of relief and reflected pleasantly at weekly intervals thereafter, that he had Valerie's own word on the futility of going for her.

He went instead to Wisnomo, having sent his wife to check to ease his conscience. And there he found Craig playing on the sands with young Edward. Sybil had gone to Hyannis for a pink sport hat and taken her mother with her.

"They left me," announced Craig, "to mind the baby. Do you know," he enquired plaintively, "why they eat sand? Infants are roughage, I suppose."

He ran his finger expertly around the baby's toothless cavity.

"Look at that! They say it's good for hens. Lay or bust. Makes shells, or something. This kid will be laying, if Sib doesn't look out. Just eat it up—loves it. Regular goat—the little gourmand!"

Tad poked the child affectionately in the ribs and spoke unawares.

"Well, old man! How's the baby?"

He proffered a thumb and exclaimed proudly, "Look at that for a grip, Craig. Gosh, the little fellow's strong. Great kid!"

Presently a nursemaid, very correct in crisp black and cringing batiste, came to take the baby to the house, so that the men were left alone for the first time in many months.

"Wonderful day," commented Craig.

"Scorching up town," contributed Tad.

"Been a pretty good summer?"

"Not so tough."

"How's Val?"

"Fine. Visiting a girl she used to go to school with."

"Ever see anything of the old crowd?"

"Not a thing. The old crowd ain't what it used to be—guys all gone cuckoo. Lot of booze hounds."

They sat in silence. Old wise youths. With the cup of life turned sour at their lips. Craig stretched his long legs and lit a cigarette. Men find it easier to talk when they breathe their heads in smoke.

"Tad," he asked, "where's that egg sib married?"

"Florida, last I heard of him. Real estate in Saint Petersburg. I had detectives on his trail for awhile, but Sybil was set on letting things rest and there wasn't any sense in throwing away money if she wouldn't use the goods, once she got them."

"In fact she never knew I had detectives after him. Moore thought that's the story Sib has. It would be jumped out to South America, and probably be easy enough to get grounds for divorce, but it's a devil of a story to bring to court."

"Couldn't she allege desertion?"

"Well, you see it was Sib who walked out on him."

"How about non-support?"

"Bring him to court on a charge

like that and all he has to do is prove his willingness to provide—and the case goes right out the window.

"You see, Sib's thinking of the kid. She's been through an awful lot and it seems to me that divorce would be the last straw."

"The game's not worth the candle. What would she get out of it? A lot of cheap talk and a bunch of headlines. Did she ever tell you about the reporters storming the place when someone tipped them off that there had been a secret marriage. And that story about 'expecting the story'?"

Tad groaned aloud.

"Of all the sickening innuendoes! The stork! And they dressed up their yarn like a saccharine bedtime story."

He lapsed into mournful silence. Craig blew thoughtful rings.

"If the thing could be done half decently," he said, "I think Sybil would marry me."

Tad appraised his friend belligerently.

"And do you know what people would say?" he demanded.

Craig shrugged. "No—what would they say?"

"Val's mother had the nerve to tell me the other day that the kid looks like you. Dolly Weston says so, too. Cuts little joke of Dolly's. And it's an open joke in the Grayson crowd. For God's sake, Craig."

Newhall was on his feet, flicking ashes off his knickers. His face, as he stooped to his shoe strings, was flushed, but his mouth quirked humorously.

"Don't be an old woman, Tad," he admonished. "And don't let your personal viewpoint influence Sybil's happiness."

"Not a chance," Tad assured him stiffly. "Sybil's got a mind of her own, and she's pretty much fed up on marriage, if you're asking me."

"But Sybil's young," insisted Craig, "and she's not going to let a philanderer and an adventurer like Eustis wreck her whole life. She's had a pretty tough time you know, Tad. You're not going to withhold all her hope for the future?"

Tad scowled unhappily. "She has her child," he maintained stubbornly. "What more does she want?"

Craig laughed shortly.

"Don't be a fool, Tad," he counseled shortly.

Sybil was very busy that summer, and Craig had scant opportunity to talk with her alone. Sometimes he thought she deliberately avoided him. But once as they sat alone on the veranda, she tucked her hand in his, and drew him to the rail to look at the moon riding over the sea.

"It's so beautiful!" she cried with a touch of wildness. "It—it makes me fearfully lonely. I can't explain. It drives me simply crazy—a night like this. There's no peace in it for me. It's so hurtfully glorious. It—"

She put her hand on her heart. And a thick, heavy silence fell upon them. The sort of stillness that falls when two people are in love and alone. Then, suddenly, the baby's voice broke the spell.

"Teddy!" she cried. And, slipping her hand from Craig's, ran into the house.

After that whenever he saw her, she talked of the child or of Mabel and her approaching wedding. It was as if she regretted the madness of the moon, and feared that he might speak of that night when she had talked so wildly of beauty and loneliness.

Mabel was to be married in the Fall. "I think myself," admitted Mab, "it's a perfect joke for old maids to get married in satin, and wear orange blossoms in their boyish bobs. But you know how it is with a sentimental gal like me. Lots of fireworks. Mendelssohn's wedding march, and a veil, a carload of flowers and trinkets in the cake. You only get married once, when you get to be my age."

Heart and soul, Sybil threw herself into the orgy of preparation. Dressmakers and caterers, florists and soloists.

"Mab's getting more kick out of it than a debutante," she told Tad. "I envy her her enthusiasm. Did you know I'm to be her only attendant?"

Dolly Weston asked Val which she supposed the society editor would call me—maid of honor, or matron?"

"Well, Sib, you let yourself in for that sort of thing—insisting that the kid be called Thorne. You know how the wise-crackers ate that up. By the way," Tad was elaborately nonchalant. "I wonder what Val sees in Dolly Weston's gang."

"Oh, Val's all right, Tad," Sybil made her voice very reassuring. "Did you know she's helping me choose my dress this afternoon? And we're having tea together afterwards."

He beamed his approval. "That's great, Sis. I'd like to see you two playing round more together."

Sybil smiled. There were limits to everything, she reflected—and playing round with Valerie was one of them. Still, she would do a lot for Tad. And the girl certainly needed watching.

"Don't you worry, dear," she told him lightly. "Val's simply crazy about you—but she happens to be very modern. And it's dreadfully old-fashioned, among the moderns, to be openly devoted to legal mates."

The wedding, as weddings go, was a great success. Mabel's aunt went, in the fashion of aunts, and Mrs. Thorne, after the manner of old friends of the family.

Sybil was beautiful in velvet that borrowed the warm crimson of sparkling burgundy. The groom camouflaged his bald spot effectively, and wore a gardenia in his button-hole.

Afterward Mabel cut her wedding cake in the vestry, and threw her bouquet from the stairs. There were more tears, and a great deal of content, and much meaningless laughter. Until, at last, she and Jack escaped in a closed car, loaned for the occasion, and drove to their hotel. They were taking the midnight for New York.

"I don't care if it is hicky," Mabel had defended her choice resolutely. "I'd rather see a lot of good shows than a few mountains and lakes."

"Don't forget Grant's tomb," teased Tad. "And there's Niagara, you know. All real hicks go to Niagara."

"Whose honeymoon is this anyhow?" she wanted to know. "We'll ride on the top of a bus, and hold hands, if we want to. I only wish Coney Island was open!"

At last it was over. Goodbye . . . Goodbye . . . Tad drove Sybil home. "Faster . . . Faster! I can hardly wait to see my baby."

"Well—well—sweetcake!—Didums miss oh muvver? Naughty muvver! Oh, he's just a nicest boy whatever was! Bless his little heart . . . Angel child!"

The exquisite nonsense of mothers. Sybil was convinced that she had neglected her child. All the preparations for Mab's wedding. Shopping and fittings, and conferences.

"Well, he was a poor little boy—and nobody loved him!"

The boy laughed his delight. And, cooing rapturously, pulled his mother's hair, and put his soft little wet mouth against her cheek, and beat her face gleefully, with his tiny hands.

"If I were as religious, as I used to be," Sybil told her mother. "I'd think it was sin to love anything as much as I love my baby."

Valerie adored the child. "I'd have one myself," she declared, "if it wasn't such a trouble. Ugh! I do love babies—but it's so unesthetic, getting them."

She crinkled her nose in a way that Tad had found entrancing some two years before.

"Unesthetic your grandmother!" he told her brutally. "You're scared. That's all that's the trouble with you."

PUT MANURE ON LAND PROMPTLY, FARMERS ARE ADVISED

PRODUCT LOSES VALUE WHEN IT STANDS USELESS

Gas and Liquid Add Considerable to Fertilizing Worth of Material

BY W. F. WINSEY

According to Henry H. Schaefer, route 7 method of disposing of stable manure very widely among Outagamie-co. farmers but, depending upon the condition of the fields and weather, he either piles manure in his yard, hauls it from the stables to temporary piles in a field, or hauls it direct from the stable to the field and spreads it. Suspecting that manure deteriorates if it is left long in piles in the yard or in the fields and that it never acquires more crop fertilizers than it contains fresh from the stables, Mr. Schaefer thinks well of the plan of hauling manure direct from the stable to the field and spreading it. He says on having the manure spread in the field it will be beneficial to the growing crop in preference to leaving it in piles to deteriorate and lose its principal fertilizing elements in gas and liquid.

To save an important fertilizing element of stable manure that is usually lost in large quantities when careless methods of handling are used, a prosperous farmer of Waupaca-co. is using a manure spreading plant in his yard and stable. The plant and equipment consists of a system of drainage in his stables that connects with a 500 barrel covered cistern in the yard. The balance of the equipment is a large cistern pump and a large sprinkling tank similar to those used on those used on streets. At the proper time of the year, this farmer sprinkles the fields that need fertilizer. In one test plot he sprinkled a crop with liquid manure and applied no other fertilizer. In another plot, he sprinkled the same crop under the same conditions and also applied a heavy coating of manure in the usual form. The yield was the same in both plots. This test shows that the liquid and gas parts of barnyard manure that many farmers lose through their methods of piling letting manure lay in piles for long periods of time, is an expensive one.

IS OLD CUSTOM

The Waupaca-co. farmer is not the inventor of his process of handling barnyard manure but he simply brought the custom with him from the old country where land is scarce, where farming is done more intensively, where the yields of crops are double that of here, where the custom of saving liquid manure instead of permitting it to escape in ditches prevails and where sprinkling fields has been done for time immemorial.

Along the line of careless methods of handling manure, The Wisconsin Farmers say: "As a rule manure is not given the attention it deserves, partly because the loss of plant food through leaching and fermentation is not very evident to the observer. The Ohio Experiment Station has been studying the question of manure conservation for over 30 years and has secured some very definite results that it would be well for every farmer to take into consideration and when contrive ways and means of benefitting by this knowledge."

"The problem has been attacked in the following manner: The manure was first forked over and then thrown into the barn. Then a certain amount of it was weighed and hauled direct from the barn to the field and spread on soil at the rate of eight tons to the acre to be plowed under for corn. An equal amount of the same kind of manure was thrown out into the barnyard where it was exposed to the elements in a flat pile until April. Then what was left of it was hauled out and spread on pasture ground the same as that which was hauled out directly from the barn and plowed under for corn. On the land where this test was being conducted, a three-year rotation of crops was carried on corn, wheat and one year of clover.

"During a period of over 30 years while this experiment has been going on, the plots receiving the manure which had been exposed in the barnyard until April produced an average of 21.4 bushels more of corn, 9.2 bushels more of wheat and 87.3 pounds more of clover hay per acre per year than the plots to which no manure was added."

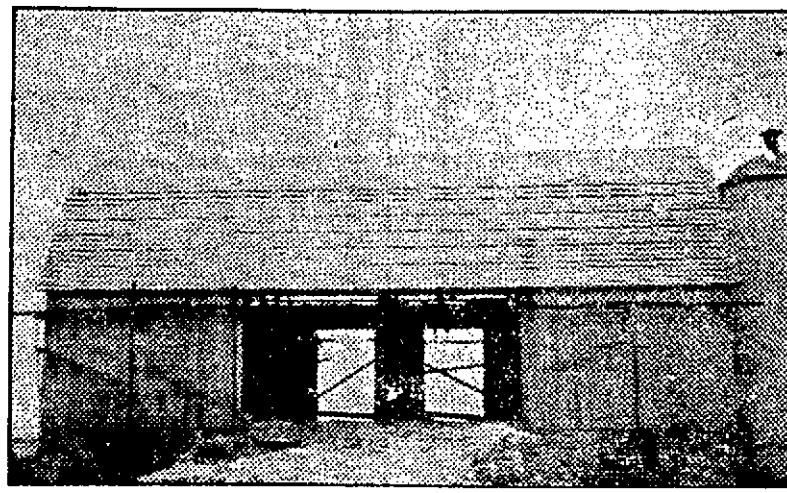

EXCESSIVE YIELD

"The plots that received the manure fresh from the barn produced 27.4 bushels more of corn, 10.2 bushels more of wheat and 1,286 pounds more of clover hay per year than the untreated plots. Thus there has been an average gain per acre per year on the three plots in this rotation that received manure direct from the stable as compared with the plots that received manure from the barnyard, amounting to six bushels of corn, one bushel of wheat and 487 pounds of clover hay."

"These figures show very definitely the advantage of applying manure direct from the barn and since the results are based upon over 30 years of experimenting they are entitled to the most careful consideration. If corn is valued at 75 cents a bushel, wheat at $1.25 a bushel and clover hay at $10 a ton, these figures would indicate that fresh manure from the stable is worth $4.75 a ton as compared with no manure, while the weathered direct from the barn is worth $1.25 a ton, showing a difference of $3.50 a ton in favor of hauling manure to the land direct from the barn."

In the above tests it will be noted that the manure in piles was spread on the plots not later than April. In case the manure had weathered and leached in piles during the summer, as it does in a number of farmyards at the present time, it would have been found to contain very little of crops.

Abendroth Barn Built in Day

Friends Help Farmer Build Barn In One Day

BY W. F. WINSEY

A friend, in need, is a friend in need. John L. Abendroth, route 3, has proved to his own satisfaction that the truth of that time-worn statement but also that he has a host of friends in both need and deed. "I do not know how we can ever repay our neighbors or even adequately thank them for the wonderful help they gave in clearing away the ruins of our barn, and in building a new one," said Mrs. Abendroth.

The new barn is inclosed, the basement is in use for the farm animals, and the entire structure will be completed on the site of the old barn that was burned to the ground with all its contents, except the horses, during the absence of the family except Irene and two young

CORN BORER NOW UNDER CONTROL, SAYS CHICAGOAN

Crop Menace May Be Completely Eliminated After Investigation

The corn borer menace that is threatening the country's foremost grain crop may be definitely and completely eliminated.

So declares Dr. Tage Ellinger of Chicago, director of research of "the international corn borer investigations," a project sponsored by the International Live Stock Exposition and financed by leaders of industrial and financial corporations of Chicago.

In its position as the leading stock show in America and also, the foremost grain and hay exhibition in the country, is concerned with finding a way to stamp out this most serious crop pest. Advancing westward from Ontario and Massachusetts, where the borer was first admitted to American shores in broom corn shipments, it has now reached the eastern boundary of the corn belt proper, in Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

STUDY IS STRESSED

In view of the vital necessity to American agricultural and business interests to exterminate this insect, the international corn borer investigations were founded on the principle that the best scientific minds in each nation be enlisted in an effort to discover and develop new methods for fighting the corn borer. Towards this end, Dr. Ellinger has been working with scientists of France, Germany, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Roumania, Denmark, Sweden and Russia to find effective ways for combating the pest. With the work now under way for a year, important practical results have been uncovered which are expected to convert a hitherto retreating defense into a driving offense against the evil.

NEW FACTS FOUND

Research workers at the Pasteur Institute of Paris have found that infested plants develop immunity to the corn borer, just as humans do in the case of contagious diseases. In fact some European corn varieties have developed this resistance to the extent that they are entirely free from borer infestation. Methods for producing immunity through vaccination are also being stressed.

Another interesting finding of the international corn borer investigations is that this dreaded insect has little minute, though none the less deadly enemies in the form of disease-producing bacteria. Spraying with fluids containing these bacteria may become an effective method of wiping it out.

A full report of the studies and such conclusions as may be drawn from them have just been published by the International Live Stock Exposition. This book on the elimination of the corn borer comes as the latest contribution to the subject, and sheds encouraging light upon a problem which a great many are branding as beyond solution.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, is our idea of a gentleman. He recently spent a month in America, recovering his health, and not even the blinding test people knew about it.

money or fertilizer value when finally spread.

As barnyard manure exists practically nothing but the labor of moving it, it is one of the best fertilizers known when in good condition and cannot be purchased in the market. It is a good policy to spread manure on the land promptly and in that way to prevent loss and small yields of crops.

POTATO PRICES SHOW VALUE OF HOME MARKETS

Good Nearby Demand Results in Better Prices, Statistics Prove

Potato prices serve as a striking example of the influence of home markets in large industrial centers upon the farm value of cash crops. Prices are relatively high when the crop can be absorbed by nearby cities. Prices are contrastingly low when there is no such market. This fact becomes apparent when potato prices in Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha counties are compared to potato prices in Wisconsin's potato belt counties located in the northern half of the state. In these six leading potato producing counties—Portage, Waupaca, Barron, Langlade, Marathon and Waushara—the average farm value of potatoes in 1927 was 73 cents per bushel. The crop in these counties sold largely in the world's market, aside from a small amount sold as certified seed stock. Marathon county had the highest average of 83 cents per bushel, the Waushara market no doubt being largely responsible.

In the three southeastern counties—Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha—where the entire crop found a market in nearby industrial centers, the average farm value in 1927 was $1.13 per bushel. Applying this $1.13 average to the potato belt counties shows that Portage county was 46 cents below the southeastern county price average. Waushara county was 44 cents below, Waupaca and Barron were 43 cents below, Langlade was 32 cents below and Marathon was 20 cents below.

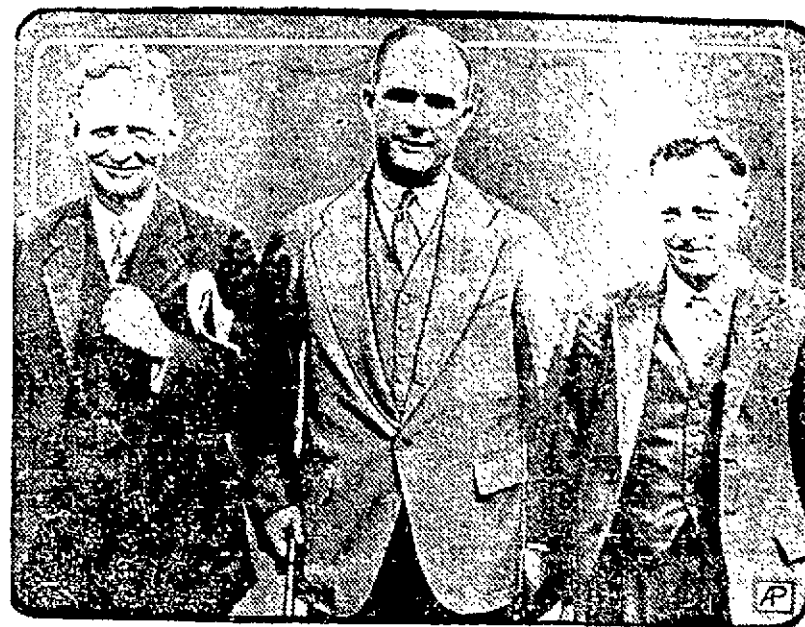

If the entire potato crop raised in these six counties had sold for an average price of $1.13 instead of 73 cents per bushel, the increase over the price actually received would have been $3,035,587, a very substantial penalty to pay for the absence of nearby markets such as large industrial cities would have provided. At the $1.13 average price, Portage county farmers would have received $823,492 more, Waupaca farmers $723,650 more, Barron farmers $658,632 more, Langlade farmers $445,489 more, Marathon farmers $155,089 more and Waushara farmers $381,450 more. The total for the two groups of counties follows:

County	Production in bushels	Farm value per bushel
Portage	1,822,810	$.67
Waupaca	1,683,000	.70
Barron	1,322,400	.70
Langlade	1,089,000	.81
Marathon	875,420	.83
Waushara	687,900	.88
Milwaukee	335,720	.99
Racine	309,600	1.18
Kenosha	127,640	1.09

That Wisconsin agriculture would tremendously benefit if it had a steadily growing and expanding industrial home market for its farm products is obvious from a study of such figures as the foregoing.

This year's spring pig crop shows a decrease of about 4,000,000 pigs, or about 7 per cent less than last year's spring crop.

Big Jersey Breeders Meet At Convention

Memphis, Tenn. —(AP)—The National Dairy Exposition here brought together for the first time the world's three greatest breeders of Jersey cattle.

They are Ed C. Lascater of Fairbairns, Texas, owner of the largest Jersey herd in the world; D. O. Bull of Toronto, Canada, largest breeder of Jerseys in the British Empire; and E. C. Perreides, the largest breeder of Jerseys on the Island of Jersey.

Lascater, a picturesque pioneer and cattle baron of south Texas, owned as much as 360,000 acres of land in one ranch, bought directly from the Spanish Grantees, and as many as 20,000 head of beef cattle. His Fairbairns Jersey Farm is the home of 2,500 purebred Jerseys, 3,500 beef cattle and 1,000 horses. Some of his fenced pastures contain 3,500 acres. Lascater's herd produces a ton and a half of butter daily, and he buys additional cream at a cost of $1,000 a day.

D. O. Bull's farm is 20 miles from Toronto, on 1,200 acres of the best land in Canada. He has a herd of 600 Jerseys and markets about 1,500 quarts of milk a day. This year he sold more than 1,200 head of Jerseys to breeders in Canada and the United States. His show stock have won many prizes.

Madison—Total enrollment in the 4th session of the short course in agriculture, which recently opened at the university of Wisconsin, numbers 140. This year's class represents an increase of 10 over the average enrollment of the past five years, report officials at the College of Agriculture.

MOST FIELD WORK ON FARMS IS COMPLETED

With the exception of surplus corn in a few fields to be husked or hauled to the barns for husking or shredding, all the regular field work on the farms of this section of the state has been completed for the season.

Big crops of corn, cabbage, and sugar beets took more than the usual time for harvesting this fall and retarded the completion of fall plowing proportionately.

The past two weeks, farmers belated with unusually large crops took advantage of the favorable weather and used all the horse and gas power on the farms to finish plowing before the fields became frost-bound.

George R. Schaefer, town of Greenville, was as successful as any of the belated farmers recently, when he assembled a five horse team and two tractors and turned twelve furrows as the outfit passed around the field.

contact with nearly 30 farmers every month.

The short course in agriculture at the state university continues for 15 weeks and is divided into three periods of five weeks each. The course is given during the winter months while work on the farm is slack, make it possible for farm boys to leave home to continue their education.

The second term opens Jan. 2. New students may enter at this time, according to officials at the college.

Book Of Knowledge

During the Harrison administration the White House represented a happy, well-ordered American home, with the chief pleasures of the household centered in family life. Mrs. Harrison's health failed, and her daughter, Mrs. McKee, often officiated at functions. Mrs. Harrison was scrupulous in performing social duties, however, and held regular receptions.

Early in February, 1890, fire broke out in the home of Secretary Tracy and his wife and daughter lost their lives.

Their double funerals took place in the East Room of the White House and a thousand gathered for the rites.

President Harrison was a devoted husband, father and grandfather. The White House was enlivened by the presence of children for the first time in many years. Birthdays and holidays like Christmas brought pleasure to the president. On March 16, 1891, he gave his grandson, Benjamin Harrison McKee, a birthday party.

WAUPACA COUNTY NEW LONDON-CLINTONVILLE-WAUPACA NEARBY TOWNS

WANT SKATING AND COASTING PLAN FOR CITY

Ask That Beacon-ave Hill Be Set Aside for Coasting Activities

New London—Skating for Thanksgiving day is assured if the weather remains cold. A few skaters were trying out the ice at Knapstein's pond, a shallow swale near the Northwestern tracks on Sunday. This, because of the fact that it is still water of no great depth, freezes before the ice is ready on the rivers and ice of three inch thickness at the great sport to youngsters on Sunday.

Children of all ages and many parents are asking that space in the city be set aside for coasting during a few of the winter months. The Whymman-st hill, beginning at Beacon-ave, which was used by the city a number of years has been a great favorite. Others are hoping that the city will again ice portions of the high school grounds or the ball park for the use of younger skaters. Many feel that river skating for youngsters is too hazardous, inasmuch as hockey players and grown ups leave little of the cleared space for beginners.

BADGER FATALITIES IN MINES BELOW AVERAGE

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C. — Fatalities from accidents in all Wisconsin mines except those producing coal were considerably lower than the rate of this country as a whole during the year ending Dec. 31, 1927, according to figures recently released by the United States Bureau of Mines. Only five Wisconsin mine workers were killed during the year and 337 injured.

The stone-quarrying industry of Wisconsin also reported a comparatively low percentage of accidents during last year, but three men being killed and 52 injured. Based on these figures, Wisconsin suffered less from serious accidents than the major portion of the country in both the mining and stone-quarrying industries.

Mine workers in the Wisconsin metal mines worked slightly above the average number of days during 1927, having been employed 232 days per man, as compared to the nationwide averages of 234 per man. Working days per man in the stone quarries fell, however, a little below the average of the country. Wisconsin men working on an average of 255 days while the workers of the entire country were employed 271 days of the year.

During 1927, a total of 352 men were killed in all the mines of the country except coal and 25,123 were injured. This was an enormous reduction over 1926, when 426 men were killed and 29,225 were injured. In stone quarries all over the United States, 125 men were killed as to

DOCTORS VIOLATE DRY LAW CHARGE

500 Practitioners in State May Lose Liquor Permits, Dixon Warns

Madison—(P)—About five hundred Wisconsin doctors first thought they had been careless, but, now considered by Roland W. Dixon, state prohibition commissioner, to be possible international law violators, face loss of their federal liquor permits because they have not taken out state permits.

Mr. Dixon said today that after writing several letters to each of them, including form and personal notices, he was convinced that the matter had gone beyond just carelessness and inattention on the part of the doctors, a good portion of whom are in Milwaukee.

"If they were small-town physicians, whose large practice prevents them from corresponding or keeping office routine matters very well in hand, I could blame most of it on carelessness," he said. "But with most of them in cities, where I presume they have clerical help and office attendants, it seems to me that the matter has gone beyond that stage and they were merely attempting to avoid the state law."

Mr. Dixon explained that doctors must obtain a state permit, which costs $10 if they are on the "active" list of holders of federal permits; that is, if they are dispensing liquor, writing prescriptions for it or using it in compounding medicines.

As he has records from the federal prohibition department on the persons holding federal permits, and the number of withdrawals made by each, the state dry chief readily finds who should have state permits. More than 1,500 have 1928 permits, but there remains about 500 on the federal "active" list who do not have the annual licenses.

Advising with E. C. Yellowley, federal prohibition administrator for the eastern part of Wisconsin, Mr. Dixon was told by the national territorial dry worker that he might serve notice on the delinquent doctors that their federal permits would be taken away if the state law is not obeyed.

Mr. Dixon intends to give the delinquent doctors just a day or so more grace for those who have been careless, then drives to cut the liquor supplies of the others will be forthcoming.

Public Is Slow To See Seriousness Of "Cold"

Madison—It may still take the public another ten years to understand that a common cold is a serious matter. When the time of full realization comes, common sense will make the isolation of an individual with a cold easier matter than at present and those who suffer from colds will go to bed for a day confident of a more rapid recovery.

Because people generally do not consider a cold a dangerous ailment, the education committee of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin in a bulletin today points out that colds often lead to other sufferings of a more serious order. The opinion is expressed that a rest of from twenty-four to forty-eight hours when the first symptoms appear, will do much to cut short the period of illness.

Besides pneumonia, it is now certain that diseases of the ear, throat and eye diseases tell us that blowing the nose violently, especially if the nostrils are closed by the fingers, is an important factor in forcing the germs up into the ears. (When blowing the nose the fingers should be placed over the nostril part of the nose so that the nostrils are not closed.) When an abscess forms in the middle ear it may break through the ear drums, frequently resulting in partial deafness; fairly serious. At times the abscess, instead of discharging through the ear drum, extends back into the mastoid bone. When this bone, directly behind the ear, becomes involved a surgical operation is called for in order to prevent the abscess from breaking into the brain. Occasionally in spite of surgical intervention, meningitis or inflammation of the brain coverings follows, resulting in death. It is true that in these cases the cause of death is given as meningitis, but the real cause was the "common cold", very serious.

"Another complication of the common cold is sinus infection. The sinuses are small hollow spaces located in the bones of the skull and connected by small openings with the nose. Two of these sinuses are in the cheek bones, two in the bones of the forehead immediately above the eyes, and two more far back behind the brain. During an attack of common cold, the infection may travel from the nose into one or more of these sinuses, causing prolonged and painful disability and frequently demanding operating treatment.

"In the case of children the patient should be isolated as much as possible and should not be allowed

SERIOUS PLAY CHOSEN BY SUNSET PLAYERS

"Children of the Moon" a three-act play by Martin Flavin, will be presented by Sunset Players, Lawrence Dramatic organization, as the second production of the 1933-34 school year, according to decisions received by the players program committee recently. Flavin's play has been widely presented in recent years, having first been given in New York in 1923. In presenting this type of play, Sunset Players is following its program of three plays for the year, one comedy, one serious production, and one costume play. The comic play, "The Poor Nut," by Nugent, was presented Nov. 13.

The cast consists of eight important characters including five male and three female. Leading it will be directed by Miss Clara Wolcott.

SEIDEL TRIO WINS APPRECIATION OF MUSIC LOVERS HERE

Brilliant Program Offered by Noted Musicians at Artist Series Number

A love of the instruments they played and a keen interpretation of the works of the great masters which they presented were the outstanding characteristics of the appearance of the Seidel trio in Memorial chapel Monday evening. The program was highly classical, but the playing of some of the more familiar classics as encores did much to balance the heavier numbers.

Two numbers were played by the trio and several solo numbers by each artist. The program opened with a trio number, Beethoven's Trio No. 1 in E flat major, a severely classical number which was presented with perfect technique and remarkable balance. The Scherzo part of this was the most enthusiastically received, perhaps because of its brisk, rhythmic qualities.

The second trio number, Arensky's trio, opus 32 in D minor, which concluded the evening's program, was perhaps the most delightful part of the entire program. The trio played this Russian number with marked sympathy and tenderness, due perhaps to the fact that they were playing a composition of one of their native composers. The first movement, Elegia, was the most touching part of the selection, though the Seidels also brought a great deal of applause.

Toscha Seidel was all that critics have claimed him to be. He was at once energetic and tender, and played as though each touch of the bow was a single unit, yet blending all tones so skillfully that the ensemble was perfect. He played Praeludium and Allegro by Pugnani, arranged by Kreisler, and Hungarian Dance No. 1 by Brahms. As encores he played Rondina by Beethoven, arranged by Kreisler, and Gavotte by Gosssec.

The solo cello numbers by Eysel Belousoff were very popular, particularly his two encores, in which he brought out both the sweet and the sonorous tones of the cello. He played Largo by Henry Eccles and Spanish Serenade by Glazounoff with masterful technique, but the earnestness and sincerity with which he played Schumann's Traumerel and a composition of his own brought the most spontaneous response from the audience. His third encore was Sarabande by Bach.

The pianist, Isidor Gorn, played four Chopin numbers, two of which were encores. The Etude in C minor and Scherzo, E flat minor, were given a truly classical interpretation, as were his encores, a Prelude and a Waltz, also by Chopin.

The next number of the Artist Series will be Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, on Wednesday, Feb. 6.

EXPECT AMERICA TO ENTER COURT

now is regarded as having much more of a binding character than the general phrases of the treaties. If the American assurances with reference to the world court reservations are sufficient, it is ascertained to have the senate specifically clarify its own reservations, then it might be argued that the senate would be justified in attaching reservations to the anti war treaties, something that all the power are anxious to avoid for it might mean the addition of reservations on the part of other parliamentary bodies and thus delay ratification.

As matters stand now, the president having conferred first with Secy Kellogg and outlined a course of action, then told the senators something of his plans. Individual consultations with the senators are continuing. Mr. Kellogg's view that the senate did not intend its reservations to be obstructive and that his note of explanation will remove all ambiguity on the joints raised. By this simple device the other governments will be in a position to accept American entry into the world court.

HOOVER TO RUSH ACTION
Even if the changes are not concluded under the Coolidge administration, they will be under Herbert Hoover. The latter has always been sympathetic with the world court idea, in fact he was one of the early projectors of the idea.

Charles Hughes, who helped Mr. Hoover on the stump, has been elected to the world court and is anxious to have American participation a reality. It is assumed that he has been instrumental in working out the new formula which will make it possible for other governments to accept the senate reservations.

The American notes will merely be explanatory of the reservations and while they will be a significant part of the record they will be vital only in that they enable the other governments of the world to interpret for themselves the meaning of the senate reservations.

The practical effect will be that America will be a member of the world court and that unless the United States becomes involved in a dispute which the senate by a two-thirds vote agreed to submit to the court, the part the United States will play will be one of moral helpfulness in giving prestige to an international institution. Actually Justice Hughes sitting as an American will, like the other judges represent not any one country but all countries in endeavoring to decide on the merits of the principles of international law who is right or wrong in a particular question submitted to the court for decision.

CITIES MUST PROVIDE FIELDS FOR MAIL PLANES
Means of providing an airport for use government mail planes was discussed by members of the chamber of commerce air mail committee and mayors of Menasha and Menasha at a meeting Monday afternoon in Menasha.

Air mail planes must be given use of airports free of charge at cities at which they stop, according to information received here, and if there is no municipal port available, the municipalities are required to rent fields. It is planned to ask Appleton and Menasha to finance the air mail project, the local city council having been approached on the matter Monday evening. It held the matter in abeyance pending consultation with Neenah and Menasha authorities.

APPLETON YOUTH PLEADS GUILTY OF CHECK FORGERIES

Morris Rammer, 21, Will Be Sentenced Wednesday by Judge Theodore Berg

Morris Rammer, 21, 603 S. Locust-st, pleaded guilty of forgery in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg Tuesday morning and sentence was deferred by the judge until Wednesday morning.

The youth was arrested Monday afternoon after two checks, one for $65 and one for $25, cashed by Paul Kobal of the Kobal and Pruetz soft drink parlor, 500 W. College-ave, were returned from the banks as forgeries. Rammer had drawn the $65 check on the Outagamie County bank and forged the name of Frank Neuman. The other check, for $25 was drawn on the Appleton State bank, also signed by Mr. Neuman. Mr. Neuman has no account at the latter institution. Both checks were made payable to Tom Shenny and were indorsed by Rammer, in Shenny's name.

Police and court records show that Rammer has been in court several times on other charges and that he served time in the industrial school for boys at Waukesha. He was arrested when 11 years old for stealing $8.50 from an Appleton woman. After serving several years at Waukesha he was paroled. A short time later he stole a revolver from a parked car and he sold it to a friend for $1. The same day the boy who purchased the gun accidentally shot and killed his brother and this led to Rammer's second arrest. He was sent back to Waukesha and released about four years ago, according to police records.

The number will be followed by a vocal solo by Annette Post. "A Flower Dance" and selections from "Wonderland" by Victor Herbert will complete the first half of the program.

The descriptive number "The Death of Custer" will open the second half of the program. The number opens with the Sioux Indian war dance the night before the battle, the bugle call as Custer's men form their day's march, cavalry airs and the response with Indian war music. These are followed by the battle scene, the Indians retreating at their victory, arrival of reinforcements and Custer's burial, the closing number being "Nearer My God to Thee."

ECLIPSE OF MOON NEARLY PERFECT

Clear Atmosphere Permits Unusually Clear View, Lawrence Man Says

"The total eclipse of the moon, which occurred from 2:30 to 3:30 Tuesday morning, was one of the most perfect I have ever seen," said Dr. J. C. Lymer, of the mathematics department at Lawrence college, who has witnessed about 10 eclipses. According to Dr. Lymer the moon, when totally eclipsed, was one of the reddest he has seen. This, he said, was because the rim of the earth was practically free from clouds, which made it possible for the light from the sun to be refracted into the earth's shadow by the earth's atmosphere.

Dr. Lymer also explained that one of the chief proofs that the world is round is that just before the moon becomes totally eclipsed the shadow of the earth is cast on the moon.

At 1:24 Tuesday morning the moon assumed a copper color which spread across its face until the total eclipse was completed at 2:33 a. m. The moon did not appear again until 3:29 and it was fiery for an hour and ten minutes after it left the eclipse.

The reddish tinge is caused by the blue light rays being sifted out as they pass through the earth's atmosphere, allowing only the red to penetrate. When the moon entered the umbra, the darker central shadow which is about 5,000 miles across it began to be colored. It resumed its former brilliancy when it left the penumbra, a fainter shadow outside the umbra, which occurred at 5:28 Tuesday morning.

Because a lunar eclipse is not particularly interesting through a telescope, the Lawrence observatory was not open to the public Monday night, but many townspeople watched the eclipse from their homes.

TWO WORKMEN HURT WHEN SCAFFOLD FALLS

Markets

HEAVY TRADING IN RAILROAD SHARES

Market Opens Irregularly but soon Swings Upward—Former Leaders Quiet

New York—(AP)—Price movement lacked uniformity at the opening of Tuesday's stock market. Allied Chemical opened 2 points higher at 25.9, a new high record. Atchafalca owned 1 1/2 points higher, and Yellow Truck, which had a sharp run-up late Monday opened with a block 7000 shares at 50, unchanged. The market swung upward soon after the opening when buying operations were resumed on a broad scale in the railroad and non-ferrous metal shares. High prices specialties, which have furnished most of the leadership in recent markets, were relatively quiet in the early trading.

Low priced rails with good earnings prospects were again in brisk demand. New peak prices were established in the early trading by St. Paul Preferred, New Haven, Erie, and Missouri-Kansas-Texas Common. Southern Pacific and Atchafalca, Baltimore and Ohio, Lehigh Valley and Missouri Pacific also showed upward movement.

Radio broke 4 points and Curis 3 1/2 with early losses of a point or other issues.

Foreign exchanges opened firm.

George Has It If It's State Government Record

Madison (AP)—George Brown has it, or can find it, if it's a record pertaining to Wisconsin government that has gone through the state department.

In charge of records and election in the office of the secretary of state, Mr. Brown started his professional career as a Methodist minister.

Despite the fact that he has held his state office since 1913, he still is listed as a member of the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist church and until recently continued active ministry on Sundays in nearby communities.

In the 15 years that Mr. Brown has been in the secretary of state's department he has reorganized the system of filing records and now the Fewer decimal system is used entirely. This is the prevalent book and record numbering and listing system in libraries.

Ask Mr. Brown for an official paper of state, even as far back as 1836 when Wisconsin became a territory, and chances are that he will go to one of the three big vaults of his office and find it for you.

In August, 1913, John S. Donald, then secretary of state and now connected with the agricultural college of the University of Wisconsin, appointed Mr. Brown chief filing clerk.

In 1916 the duties of handling the election details were given Mr.

OFFICIALS INVITED TO COMMERCIAL CONGRESS

Notice of the annual convention of the Pan-American Commercial congress at New York, Dec. 7 to 9, has been received by Mayor A. C. Rule. The twentieth anniversary of the Southern Commercial congress will be celebrated at the same time.

The mayor is requested to appoint a delegation of 10 Oshkosh men to participate in the deliberations. The theme of the convention will be the interrelation and interdependence of the state of the United States and the countries of the Americas.

No action on the congress has been taken by the council, and it is not believed likely that anybody will attend from this city.

Clarence G. Boldt and Ervin Schultz of this city left Saturday on a trip through Indiana and Ohio. While in Ohio they will attend the American National Fox Show at Cleveland.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition, —correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescription product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

HOLD ANNUAL BULL SALE NEXT MONTH

Animals Must Be More Than Nine Months Old, Association Advises

The next annual bull sale of Outagamie Holstein Breeders' association will be held next month, according to E. O. Mueller, secretary of the association. Letters advising farmers of the sale now are being sent out. Breeding of bulls to be consigned should be forwarded to Mr. Mueller as soon as possible. Listings should give the name, age and number of the sire and dam. All bulls consigned to the sale should be over nine months old and in good condition.

In the 15 years he has held his office, he has served under administrations of five secretaries of state —Donald, Merlin Hull, Elmer S. Hall, Fred R. Zimmerman, and the present secretary, Theodore Dammann.

He is married and is the father of two grown children, both of whom have been graduated from the University of Wisconsin. His son, Paul M. Brown, was recently appointed auditor of the Madison General hospital.

Mr. Brown was born in Bedford, England, 40 miles north of London. He studied in England public schools and went to college in London to prepare himself for the Methodist ministry.

In 1887 he sailed from England for the United States, coming directly to Wisconsin to spread the word of his religion. He was attracted here because two of his college chums had preceded him to this state. Mr. Brown's first church work in the country was at Ripon, Wis.

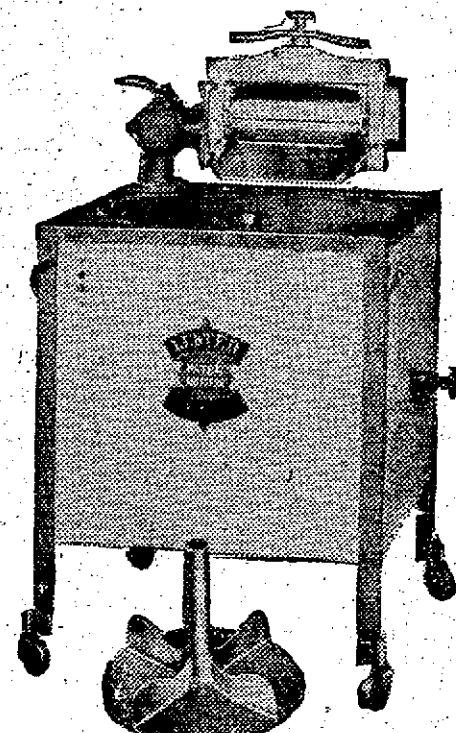

Prior to the time he became an employee of the state, he studied at Hamline college, St. Paul, Minn., and at Illinois Wesleyan.

Later while his two children were in the university here, Mr. Brown studied in the same institution for one and one half years.
